Crime's Big Income.
Again, Prof. Einstein.
Why Women Chatter.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

SOUSA SAID:

"Anybody could lead my band as well as I could, for a little while."

Anybody can lead the United States while everything is going cheerfully. Any president can look like a great president, any corporation head like a great corporation head, when the money is rolling in faster than the people can spend it.

REAL QUALITIES are shown when times are NOT good, values of securities dropping, workers losing their jobs.

To say that not very much has been done to take active charge of discouraging conditions is not criticising anybody.

THE NATION has had "wished" upon it a wet-dry problem, and with it such an outbreak of crime as the world has never heard of.

Men may think as they please about prohibition and its wisdom. But they cannot have two opinions about the crime wave. The city of Chicago alone pays gangsters in the bootlegging business a yearly income as big as the total income of the government from beer and whisky in the old days.

THE INCOME of the organized criminal classes in the United States is greater than the income of the United States government itself, with all its billions.

It would take a Mussolini and drastic Mussolini methods to deal with that crime situation.

AT PERTH AMBOY, N. J., a powerful explosion injured 50, killed two women, starting a disastrous fire that destroyed several buildings. Those that write our history a hundred years hence will be interested in the fact that the police sought only two explanations, a private bootlegging still blown up, or "building racketeers" blowing up a building because contractors refused to "come across."

EINSTEIN produces a new explanation of the inexplicable.

Time and gravitation, it seems, amount to little. The great reality is "space." In other words "when the earth was without form, and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep," practically nothing important was lacking, since space was there.

WHEN a scientist talks in language that you do not understand, it is dangerous to contradict him. But when you visit the museum of the Louvre in Paris, you find in one spacious room the most magnificent of all existing works of art, the Venus of Milo.

According to Einstein, the empty space around the statue would seem to be the important thing.

A commonplace man says the statue, the creation of human genius, is forty-seven trillion times more important than the space around it.

If space had been the important thing, why should Divine Providence have taken the trouble to create so much matter, including miserable humanity?

GERMAN scientists named Friedenthal and Cohn-Guben say:

"Woman's chattering is physiological, not a default of character. Man's greater secrecy and discretion are due to laziness, not to will-power or diplomacy. The female jaw, larnyx, and vocal chords are set in motion with extraordinary ease, not so man's."

All that is scientific nonsense. Women have chattered more than men because women lacked serious work when through with bearing children and caring for them. Women, with occupation worth while, do not chatter.

Mme. Curie, for instance, does not chatter.

Sappho did not chatter. Her mind was concentrated on poetry. Queen Elizabeth did not chatter. She talked deliberately, with purpose.

Give women something better to do, and they won't chatter.

DR. E. A. SPERRY died yesterday, in Brooklyn, aged 69. How many know his name?

These discoveries, more than any others, may make possible the final perfected flying machine. Sperry's name 100 years hence will undoubtedly be better known than the name of any statesman now living.

ANOTHER sad day for speculators in Wall Street yesterday. "New low prices for 1930" marked the beginning of the week. The selling of stocks, many for less than their value, justified Otto H. Kahn's statement that Americans must do something, so when their stocks won't go up they force them down by selling.

THE TARIFF was blamed. Some were frightened by statements that Europe wouldn't buy from us. Our copper, cotton, lumber, automobiles, etc., will remain unsold, etc.

Most of that is the twaddle of timidity.

Europe never buys from us unless Europe MUST buy.

As they bought from us before they will buy again if they want our goods and we make the right price.

NOT ALL of us are poor, you may be glad to hear. Not all incomes were "shot to pieces" in the Wall street slump.

Up to June 12 Uncle Sam had received in income tax $105,000,000 more than he had got in the same period last year, and he expects a surplus of $100,000,000. The government took in about $500,000,000 yesterday, not bad for one day.

RECOMMEND WASSON DISBARMENT

EX-JURIST CENSURED BY BAR BOARD

Papers Impounded Until Final Decree; Calvert Case Held in Abeyance

Disbarment of former Judge Henry G. Wasson is recommended in the final report of the board of governance of the Pennsylvania Bar, filed with the prothonotary of the Supreme Court at Philadelphia today.

By an order of the Supreme Court the voluminous papers in the case were ordered impounded until Saturday.

PAPERS IMPOUNDED

The impounding was ordered, according to Justice John W. Kephart, because in the event that the court reverses the decree of the Board of Governance none of the testimony taken by the standing masters of the Board of Governance will be made public.

With the disbarment recommendation the Board of Governance also filed a report in the case of Attorney George H. Calvert holding his case in abeyance until such time as he may have recovered sufficient to testify before the standing masters' committee.

Calvert suffered a nervous breakdown, and is at present said to be confined in a New York sanitarium.

Disbarment of Wasson and Calvert was asked in petitions filed several months ago by Martha K. and M. Blanche Hibbert, sisters of Mrs. Eleanor H. Davidson, who in 1921 was adjudged incompetent to handle her $3,000,000 estate.

CHARGE MISMANAGEMENT

Their alleged mismanagement of the estate was the basis for the disbarment action.

Mrs. Davidson, who lives in a mansion in the Glenshaw road,

LAY MINE LOSS TO COAL RATES

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP.)—Attacks on freight rates on Southern coal destined for the Great Lakes trade continued today before an Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner. W. E. Tytus, president of the Sunday Creek Coal Company of Ohio, testified that many operators in his state were losing money because of Southern competition.

Northern coal operators contend the rates allowed southern coal producers on coal for the lake trade are preferential. Tytus said the present differential of 35 cents a ton in rates on coal from mines in West Virginia, Kentucky and

Tariff Bill Is Law; President Signs Measure

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS.)—President Hoover signed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill this afternoon before an imposing assemblage in the executive offices.

His signature automatically makes the billion-dollar tariff measure—over which party factions had wrangled so bitterly ever since Congress was called into session last summer, to revise the rates as an aid to agriculture—the law of the land at midnight tonight.

The bill, designated to protect American business from foreign competition, has been described as establishing one of the highest protectionate tariffs in history.

NOTABLE GROUP PRESENT

The following gathered around Mr. Hoover's desk and watched him write his name on the bill:

Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury; Francis X. A. Eberle, Commissioner of Customs, and the President's three secretaries, George Akerson, Lawrence Richey and Walter A. Newton.

Beside this group stood the tariff conferees of the Senate and the House, who had worked out the compromise rates on the many disputed articles and administrative features of the long-debated legislation:

Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, co-author of the bill, and Senator Shortridge (Rep.), of California, and Representatives Hawley (Rep.), of Oregon, and Treadway (Rep.), of Massachusetts. Representative Bacharach, of New Jer-

PAVING 'FIX' CHARGED BY HUMES

Calls for State Records To Show Favoritism in Making Brick Awards

Paving brick contracts were attracting the attention of county and state authorities today:

1—At Harrisburg, Gov. John S. Fisher's state investigation revealed that the present charges of favoritism in awarding state contracts were not the first that have been called to the attention of state authorities.

2—Allegheny County Commissioners meeting here asked Gov. Fisher to investigate alleged irregularities in county-state paving projects.

By JOHN P. COWAN,
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, June 17.—Altering specifications in road building contracts to benefit privileged bidders was charged today by Attorney E. Lowry Humes at State Highway Commissioner James L. Stuart's investigation into brick contracts.

Humes represented independent brick manufacturers in their complaint that W. A. Bonitz, president of the Crescent Brick Company and contributor of $97,000 to the Davis-Brown campaign fund, is enjoying special privileges in Allegheny County state-aid contracts.

SPECIFICATIONS CHANGED

Humes claimed that the state highway department suddenly changed brick specifications to a "monopolistic" three and one-half inch wire but lug after the National Paving Brick Association, headed by Bonitz, had advocated that type.

Questions on Allegheny County contracts were brought to the forefront when Humes questioned Samuel Eckels, chief engineer of the state highway department. He asked Eckels:

ENGINEER QUIZZED

"Is it not a fact that you were in communication with Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and County Public Works Director Norman F. Brown regarding Ohio river boulevard and other contracts of the Crescent Brick company in order to compensate them for

MRS. WILSON PLUNGES 8 FLOORS

Patient in Mercy Hospital, She Was Scheduled for Dismissal in Few Days

Mrs. Catherine Wilson, 49, wife of John H. Wilson, city solicitor of Butler, Pa., and former congressman, was killed early today when she leaped or fell from an eighth-story window of Mercy Hospital.

She had entered the hospital three weeks ago, suffering a nervous breakdown, and was believed to have almost entirely recovered, according to the hospital authorities.

She was to visit downtown stores on a shopping expedition today, and was to have been discharged from the hospital within two or three days.

Mrs. Wilson, mother of two sons—John L. and Robert S. Wilson—resided at 212 East Pearl street, Butler.

ALL U. S. GOLF STARS QUALIFY

HOYLAKE, England, June 17.—(AP.)—With Archie Compston, British pro, leading the field, and Leo Diegel heading the American invasion, the second and last qualifying round of the British open golf championship seemed to present no great menace to the players from the United States.

Diegel, with 75 today, had a 36-hole total of 145, for strokes behind Compston's 141.

George Von Elm scored 76 in the second round for a total of 147, placing him in a tie with Cyril Tolley, British amateur star, for the lead among the amateurs.

MacDonald Smith, with a brilliant 71 today, was well to the front with 148 for the two days' play. Bobby Jones slipped back to 77 in the second and stood at 150, with Horton Smith just behind at 151.

F. C. Stevens, Jr., Los Angeles amateur, with a 36-hole count of 157, was along the border line, but with an excellent chance to qualify.

Don Moe and Jim Barnes, other American entries, were late starters. Moe reached the turn in 40 strokes.

Douglas Grant, California resident in London, scored 84 in the second round for a total of 160.

After Bobby Jones completed his round at the Wallasey Club, he was made an honorary life member of the club. He accepted with thanks in a brief speech.

HUNT FOR FAZIO IN BRIBE QUIZ

County detectives were searching today for Philip Fazio, confessed operator of wildcat breweries.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park desires to question him in regard to charges Fazio is reported to have made to the effect he paid politicians for protection at the rate of $10 or more for each barrel of beer marketed. Park declares he will make every effort to get from Fazio the names of the politicians whom Fazio is said to have declared he had paid a third of a million dollars in seven years.

Frank J. Zappala, Fazio's attorney, was questioned regarding the charges by District Attorney Park today. He admitted he had posed for a photograph with Fazio as the latter began to tell his story, but insisted he had then walked away and had heard nothing of what his client was saying to interviewers.

Stocks Rally, Markets Steady

NEW YORK, June 17.—Vigorous recoveries took place in the securities markets today and a better tone was also noted in the grains and cotton.

Overnight margin calls brought a flood of distress selling at the opening, but the offerings were absorbed readily and powerful buying orders steadied the list. Professional shorts covered hastily and a slow but steady upward movement began and continued through the entire session.

Closing prices were from two to six points higher for the leading industrials and utilities. The buying interest centered in Steel common which forged ahead impressively. Trading was in huge volume at the start, but the pace decreased as the session progressed. Total sales approximated 5,000,000 shares.

In Chicago, September wheat rallied about two cents and others were correspondingly higher. Stronger foreign markets and the attractive current levels brought in buying orders from many sources.

Fairmont Coal Man Sued for Divorce

GRANDPARENTS LOSE BOY

Harry Needleman, of Lake City, Fla., was awarded the custody of his son Sidney, 9, after habeas corpus proceedings today in Common Pleas Court before Judge George P. Moore. The boy's grandparents, Max and Sophie Broida, of 36 Vine street, with whom he has been visiting since May 12, were greatly upset by the decision. Broida fell on the floor in a faint after first trying to snatch the boy from his father, and Mrs. Broida almost fainted. The boy screamed for a time.

In his testimony the boy said that his father and his stepmother beat him every day he could remember, but he said that his grandparents treated him well except when he was bad.

The boy's mother, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Broida, it was testified, had expressed a dying wish that her son be brought up in the Jewish faith. The present Mrs. Needleman is not of that faith.

Husband's Auto Hits Wife Out With Other Man

A young wife is in a hospital today, her leg broken when she was struck, while walking with a young man, by the automobile of her estranged husband.

Harry Frick, 21, of 15 Augustine street, the husband, is being held in Hazelwood Police Station.

Mrs. Geraldine Frick, 21, of 356 Flowers avenue, the victim, was run down at Flowers avenue and Chatsworth street last night.

After Mrs. Frick was struck, the automobile sped away.

David Fox, 23, of 80 Bigelow street, who was walking with Mrs. Frick, notified police, and had the young wife removed to the hospital.

Three hours after the accident, Frick entered the police station and surrendered.

William Mitchell, the girl's father, said that the young couple are separated, his daughter living at home. Frick also is living with his people.

The young husband refused to give details of the accident to police, admitting, they say, only that he was driver of the machine.

County Asks Bids on 1,000 Voting Machines

County Commissioners today authorized Controller Robert Woodside to advertise for bids for 1,000 or more voting machines for Allegheny County.

Specifications of the bids require that not less than 70 nor more than 75 of the machine be delivered by October 1, next, and that the balance be delivered in lots of 100 by July 1, 1931.

Requirement of a $100,000 bond from each bidder indicates that the cost of the machine to the county will be at least $1,000,000.

Specifications require that the machines shall be equipped to accommodate the names of 30 candidates, or nine designated parties, with an extra row for future parties.

Another row shall be provided for special questions, such as bond issues. The machines must be so constructed that an elector can vote a straight party ticket in one operation.

'MILT' JAFFE, MARKOWITZ ADMIT SHOW BOAT GUILT

FINED $300, ON PAROLE 1 YEAR

Plea on 3 Counts Accepted By State; Gambling List Not Revealed in Court

"Milt" Jaffe, a prominent figure among the sporting gentry, and Dr. Louis Markowitz, a dentist who has managed night clubs, changed their minds in Criminal Court today and pleaded guilty to maintaining a gambling room on the upper deck of the "Show Boat."

Visiting Judge O. Clare Kent then fined them $300 each and paroled them for one year.

Jaffe and Markowitz had gone on trial today but after three prohibition agents had testified of the raid on the luxuriously furnished gambling room their counsel, Benjamin Lancher, offered to have them plead guilty to three of the six counts.

PLEA OFFER ACCEPTED

Assistant District Attorney George F. P. Langfitt accepted the offer.

The first witness, Agent William V. Unicas, told the story of the 15 prohibition agents who descended upon the floating cabaret in the Allegheny River on May 15 and reported finding on the first deck twoscore dancing couples and a fair share of bottled liquor at the tables.

On the upper deck they found 30 men and women gathered about two spinning roulette wheels and a dice table.

Had today's trial gone much farther, there was a possibility that a list of the gambling room's outstanding customers would have seen the light of day.

FIND LIST OF GAMBLERS

The agents told of finding such a list, which told of the winnings and the losses of certain customers and bore certain marks which indicated that the proprietors had cashed bouncing checks.

Jaffe and Markowitz now must face liquor charges brought by the prohibition agents in connection with the same raid.

sey, another conferee, was not present.

The President waited for Senator Watson (Rep.), of Indiana, the majority leader, to appear, but when word was sent to the White House that Watson could not be present, the President affixed his signature. The President made no comment.

NEW REGULATIONS WIRED

Immediately after the bill was signed, Ogden L. Mills, under secretary of the Treasury, was notified and signed new regulations which were transmitted by telegraph to all customs offices in the country.

The new law applies to all cargoes arriving in the United States after midnight. Ship masters who can get their papers into the custom house before then will have their cargoes assessed under the old rates.

There was no applause or posing for cameramen. In fact, newspapermen were barred.

Mr. Hoover wrote:

"Approved June 17, 1930, at 12:59 P. M.

HERBERT HOOVER."

Into the face of the stock market break, the Hoover administration is planning to throw a series of statements in defense of the Hawley-Smoot-Grundy tariff measure.

PLANS TO APPEASE CRITICS

This strategy to stem the tide and "educate" the public into a feeling of confidence in the tariff will involve issuance, piecemeal, of the reports from the various departments interested, analyzing the measure. Thus there will be statements by the Treasury Department, the Tariff Commission and other branches of the federal government.

In the case of the tariff bill, President Hoover anticipated its receipt and had his departments working on their reports in advance. The possibility that his statement announcing he would sign the bill was responsible for yesterday's market break is believed to have influenced him in the decision to make public the additional reports by way of further defense of his action.

William H. Coleman, associated with Zappala as counsel for Fazio in the latter's trial for the murder of William Gregory—a charge on which he was found not guilty last week—also disclaimed all knowledge of Fazio's bribery story.

Fazio is under $2,500 bond on a charge of violating the liquor laws.

Park said if Fazio presented evidence that would lead to the conviction of a "higher up" in the beer racket protection he would personally request that Fazio be given leniency.

Ex-Judge Forced to Trial, Totters Into Court

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP.)—Former Judge W. Bernard Vause tottered into court today, held from falling by a man on either side, to answer with his brother and eight others to having used the mails to defraud while he was a member of the county bench.

Reaching the counsel table he slumped into a chair and clasped his hands over his eyes, tears dropping between his fingers. His attorney, Nathan Perlman, had held Vause in an adjoining room for some time while he made strenuous efforts to secure an adjournment to permit him to file an application for a change of venue, but failed.

A doctor hired by the defense testified that Vause was not legally insane but in such a mental-medical condition that he ought to be confined to a hospital. The prosecution psychiatrist said, on the other hand, that Vause was merely petrified with fright and was perfectly able to go on trial.

Vause is charged with fraud in connection with the $400,000 crash of the Columbia Finance Corporation. A heavy stockholder in Columbia, he also faces a federal indictment for perjury and a New York County indictment for grand larceny in connection with the case.

Has Edge on Two Opponents As Jersey Republicans Vie In Prohibition Referendum

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., June 17.—New Jersey presented to the nation today a three-ringed political circus of unparalleled national interest, involving the senatorial aspirations of three prominent men and that rarest of all Republican spectacles—a referendum on prohibition.

Between 500,000 and 600,000 Jerseyites began trekking to the polls at 8 a. m. to settle it.

Perhaps by midnight it will be determined whether Jersey Republicans are dry or anti-dry, and whether Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Congressman Franklin Fort, or ex-Senator "Joe" Frelinghuysen gains the Republican senatorial nomination, which carries with it the privilege of opposing a "wringing wet" Democrat, Alexander Simpson, in November.

MORROW IS FAVORITE

On what race-track followers know as form, Morrow should win. He is the favorite. He has about 50 per cent of the organization leaders supporting his candidacy, he is opposed to prohibition, he has most of the newspaper support, and sulking large behind these factors is a whimsical and genial personality and a record of high achievement that has given him international prominence in the last decade.

Yet the issue of prohibition is so savage among Jersey Republicans that there are few unwilling to accord the dry candidate, Congressman Fort, a chance for victory, particularly as Morrow must divide the wet vote to some extent with Frelinghuysen. After a political lifetime in the dry camp and support of the Anti-Saloon League, Frelinghuysen flopped spectacularly in this primary, and thereby upset all the careful preliminary planning of those who were going to give Morrow the nomination on a platter.

FRELINGHUYSEN IS "X"

The contest admittedly lies between Morrow and Fort, with the star of Frelinghuysen's vote looming as the large algebraic "X" in all calculations.

Were the race between Morrow and Fort, there probably would not be much question of Morrow's victory.

Probably no primary of the current off-year has aroused such national interest as this Jersey battle. Heretofore, the Republicans have soft-pedalled the dangerous issue of prohibition and watched contentedly while the Democrats warred among themselves about it.

Eckels replied:

"No, it is not true."

Humes asked:

"Would you produce the files showing your communications with Armstrong and Brown?"

Eckels said:

"We will be glad to."

ASKS FOR FILES

Humes also asked for the files of the tests made on bricks used in various state contracts.

State Deputy Attorney General Roscoe R. Koch, representing Stuart, opposed this move as a "fishing expedition" but Stuart ordered a large bundle of records brought in.

Humes told Stuart:

"We are trying to let you know what is going on behind your back."

He blamed the situation on Stuart's subordinates.

Humes particularly asked for the production of correspondence and other records of the state highway department concerning thespecifications for brick paving of two sections of the William Penn highway in Washington County.

FAVORITISM CHARGED

He charged that attempts were made to alter the specifications for these contracts to benefit "privileged bidders" two years ago.

Official specifications had been provided for a wire cut lug brick on which complaint was made that the particular specifications benefitted the "privileged manufacturers," Humes said.

Humes represented S. G. Porter, president, and J. Mess Porter, secretary and treasurer, of the Globe Brick Company, of West Virginia. Lonitz was represented by Attorney George Ross Hall and Attorney Edward O. Spotts, Jr., represented Commissioner C. C. McGovern, of Allegheny County.

Looking wistfully into a spraying fountain in the courtyard of the American Women's Club here today, she said she missed her husband and home in California, but was going back soon.

When asked whether she would be willing to renounce tennis for her home, she left no doubt that marriage was her chief interest.

COUNTY ASKS INQUIRY ON PAVING

Commissioners Appeal to Governor for Investigation Into All Road Work

The County Commissioners today adopted a resolution requesting Gov. John S. Fisher to conduct an investigation of the alleged irregularities in the bidding for brick work for joint state and county roads.

Commissioner C. C. McGovern introduced the resolution.

McGovern in introducing his resolution said:

"I have been trying for the last few years to catch up with the pay-off man in this business. I don't think it is on the square."

ARMSTRONG APPROVES

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"I heartily agree with the Commissioner, but I don't know that this is the right way to proceed. As far as the paymaster is concerned, I am the third door up the alley, and if he comes don't let him miss me."

Commissioner E. V. Babcock said:

"How would it be if we ask Gov. Fisher to furnish us with the minutes of the hearing as far as they relate to Allegheny County?"

BROWN INTERVENES

Director Norman F. Brown, of the Allegheny County Department of Public Works, attempted to point out that the county does not specify brick roads, inferring that brick roads are a state proposition.

McGovern replied:

"Allegheny County pays one-sixth of all the taxes of the state, and I am just as much interested in other parts of the state where money is being spent."

CAROL'S SUCCESS BUOYS UP HOPES OF ZITA FOR HUNGARY

EX-EMPRESS WANTS SON ON THRONE

Copyright 1930 International News Service.

BRUSSELS, June 17.—The successful coup d'etat of King Carol II in Rumania, who ended his five years of exile with a dramatic seizure of the throne, has established a "noteworthy precedent" and greatly encouraged the ex-Empress Zita mother of Crown Prince Otto pretender to the Hungarian throne in her attempts to restore the Hapsburg dynasty.

The views of the ex-empress who has spent her years of exile in furthering Otto's claims were given to International News Service today by an official spokesman at her modest chateau where she has been living since dissolution of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy.

The spokesman pointed out that the ex-empress disagrees violently with the statement of Premier Maniu of Rumania that the Hapsburgs have no right to re-establish the monarchy in Hungary.

UNWORRIED BY SITUATION

She is not worrying over the situation the spokesman declared adding:

"She only wishes now to give her children a sound education. Hungary must decide for herself what kind of government she desires."

Crown Prince Otto son of the late King Charles will be 18 in November and at that time according to Hapsburg family law reaches his majority. It has been rumored consistently that he would attempt a coup on the occasion of his eighteenth birthday and the success attending Carol's return is believed to have enhanced his possibilities.

MYSTERY PLANE ARRIVES

BUCHAREST, June 17.—(INS)—Mystery surrounded the landing of an airplane this morning at Oltenitza.

The plane was reported to have brought a man and a woman. Authorities said the passengers spoke nothing but Bulgarian, and the minister of communications issued a statement saying the plane was Bulgarian—a private machine whose pilot had lost his way.

DENY "RED-HEAD" ABOARD

Officials denied emphatically Mme. Lupescu was one of the passengers.

The government has issued an official statement denying Mme. Lupescu, Carol's red-headed companion in exile, is on her way to this city, but her whereabouts remained in doubt today.

There was a persistent rumor in royal circles here today that King Carol had effected a reconciliation with Queen Helen, his estranged wife and mother of Crown Prince Michael.

BUREAU FAVORS FALL PENSION

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—Taking advantage of the new Spanish-American War pension act, former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, convicted last year of accepting a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, California oil magnate, has asked the government for a pension because of his services in the Spanish-American War, the Pension Bureau revealed today.

Fall, who was captain of Company H of the First Territorial Regiment Volunteer Infantry, in the war, has asked for a stipend of $72 a month. This is the amount he would be entitled to under the act passed by Congress over President Hoover's veto.

So far no money has been appropriated to carry out the provisions of the bill, but Mr. Hoover has asked Congress to take this action before adjourning.

While not passing formally on the application, Pension Bureau officials said that Fall's services apparently entitled him to a pension.

3 ARABS HANGED IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, June 17.—(AP)—Three Arabs, convicted of murders committed during the rioting of last August, today paid the supreme penalty for their participation in the disturbances.

They were hanged before noon in the Acre jail. All endeavors of the Arab executive to obtain a reprieve supported by the heads of the Christian churches were futile.

A general strike was called and observed throughout Palestine in protest at carrying out of the sentences. Shops almost without exception were closed.

Intense excitement prevailed at Acre, where Arabs demanded the corpses of the executed men, wishing to bury them themselves instead of having them interred in the prison cemetery.

SEEK OWNERS OF SEIZED RUM

Federal prohibition agents today were seeking owners of 14 packing boxes of approximately 40 cases of Canadian whisky seized when a trucking company made delivery to the H. J. Heinz Company plant. The shipment was billed as from Newark, N. J.

The purchasing agent of the Heinz firm, knowing no shipment was expected from New Jersey, opened a case and found quart bottles of rye whisky sealed in cans resembling olive oil containers. He notified prohibition headquarters.

The shipment was received at the Universal Storage, Pike and Eleventh streets. Agents expressed the belief bootleggers intended to intercept the truck before it reached the plant, but were thwarted by traffic conditions.

SNEE SLATED FOR EVANS' PLACE

County Court Judge to Go On Common Pleas Bench, Says Word From Capital

Judge Sylvester J. Snee, of County Court, will be appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher in a few days as judge of Common Pleas Court to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge John A. Evans, according to word from Harrisburg.

Fisher will fill Judge Snee's vacated seat by appointing Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk to the county bench, it was said.

Attorney Joseph Stadtfeld, former president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, is considered most likely to receive the Governor's appointment to the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Josiah Cohen. Others mentioned for the latter seat are Attorneys Eugene B. Strassburger and Louis Caplan.

Candidates said to be favorably considered by Gov. Fisher are believed to have the backing of State Senator James J. Coyne, who managed the local campaign of Senator Joseph R. Grundy.

County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich, who is said to have the support of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong as the successor of Judge Evans, is still in a receptive mood, but it is believed Snee will be the appointee.

Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, the chairman, has indicated his report to the Senate will consist probably of a lone sentence favoring ratification. Meanwhile Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, plans to submit a long minority report, urging rejection of the treaty. He is the leader of the opposition.

The committee will consider the document all this week.

RIVERS BILL STRIKES SNAG

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—Administration leaders were looking forward today to an adjournment of Congress next week, even though the $136,000,000 rivers and harbor bill had struck a snag in a Senate dispute over the Illinois waterway.

Every item in the bill was agreed to by the Senate, except one providing $7,500,000 for developing the Illinois waterway. Over this question senators from the Upper Lake states battled the Illinois delegation on the amount of water to be diverted into the channel.

Lindy Tests Rubber Boat, Europe Flight Hinted

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is conducting a series of experiments at the Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J., which suggests the probability of another trans-Oceanic flight, the Daily News says.

While his wife, the former Anne Morrow, and other members of the family look on, the paper says, Col. Lindbergh, attired in a bathing suit paddles an inflated rubber boat about a big swimming pool behind the Morrow home.

Attached to the craft is a small sail. The boat is of a type that may be deflated and stowed away in the cockpit of an airplane. It would keep one person afloat on rough water for hours. During the past six weeks Col. Lindbergh has made several changes in the craft's design.

The News says the famous aviator is eager to make a round-trip flight between the United States and Europe.

Ascot Crowds Give King, Queen Brilliant Greeting

ASCOT, England, June 17.—In the presence of King George, Queen Mary and other members of the English royal family, the famous Ascot race week was opened today in a blaze of splendor. Brilliant sunshine prevailed.

Thousands packed the track as the royal procession, escorting the King and Queen, passed down the course to the royal box. It will be filled to capacity throughout the week, every member of the royal family now in England, including the Prince of Wales, having expressed intention of visiting the meet.

The royal enclosure around the box today was filled with beautifully gowned women and their perfectly groomed escorts.

Almost all the dresses were in the new style, many nearly touching the ground. Flowered chiffons, crepes and georgettes were most popular with the society racegoers, but there were some wonderful creations in black lace. Hats were larger than they have been since the days immediately following the war. Parasols were much in evidence, some startling effects being obtained with heavy silks patterned to resemble flower petals.

The King and Queen and their guests will journey in state to the course every day during the meet.

Total prize money for the 28 races is $202,000, and the value of the cups in addition is over $4,000.

Burglars Latest Pests In Divorcee's Life

CHICAGO, June 17 (AP)—First bandits, then assassins, and now burglars to vex Mrs. Lottie Brenner Dechow, divorced wife of the man who called himself Count von Buelow.

While she was absent from her costly Sheridan road mansion last night, a thief took papers pertaining to her divorce suit.

Mrs. Dechow, elderly widow of Nathan T. Brenner, who was called the "millionaire alderman," told police early today she was too tired to determine exactly what papers had been taken.

She said it was probably the evidence against Henry.

Police began a search for Henry Dechow. He is at liberty under bond charged with swearing to a false affidavit in applying for a license to wed the alderman's widow in Crown Point, Ind., in December, 1928.

Several months ago, bandits took $50,000 in pearls after trussing up Mrs. Dechow and her guests. Three weeks ago someone stood on a balcony of the mansion and fired into her bedroom.

SHAFEUP SHIFTS 33 PATROLMEN

Transfer of 33 city patrolmen was announced today by Police Supt Peter P Walsh in what was said to be the first of a series of shifts, new appointments and promotions reflecting the "to-the-victor-belongs-the-spoils" policy of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Today's transfers, administration leaders say, will be followed within a week or 10 days by appointments to numerous vacancies in all departments in the city government created with dismissal of employes who supported Councilman James M. Malone for mayor last fall against Kline.

The Mayor, it is reported, will leave the city for a vacation after approving the list of appointments prepared in most instances by Republican ward chairmen.

Among the appointments in the police bureau will be elevation of Acting Inspector Harry Moore of the new Seventh Police District, to the inspectorship of the district, comprising Carrick, Overbrook and Hays.

Moore, according to reports, will be promoted July 1. At the same time 125 sub-patrolmen and 100 sub-firemen will be appointed.

Cupid Lags Again In 1929, Marriage Records Show

HARRISBURG, June 17 (AP)—Judged by the number of marriages Cupid still was working slowly last year in Pennsylvania, although faster than in 1928.

The Bureau of Vital Statistics, claiming the marriage rate is in direct proportion to economic conditions, today announced 70,507 couples were married in 1929, an increase of 3,000 over 1928. The rate, 14.2 per 1,000 population, and the number were both below the 1927 figures.

The 1930 rate is lower than the 14.66 rate of 1908 which followed the panic of 1907 and set a low record. The rates reached a new high after the signing of the armistice and the return of the soldiers and has dropped sharply since.

As soon as the woman realized what she had done, she disappeared into the crowd.

OFFICIALS TOLD TO CLEAN UP SHARPSBURG

Burgess and Police Chief Admonished by Borough Council in Secret Session

Sharpsburg Borough Council, hoping to avoid publicity on its threatened police shake-up, it was revealed at last night's meeting, held a special meeting behind closed doors Sunday afternoon at which the burgess, police chief and other officials were ordered to "clean up" alleged vice conditions about which there have been complaints.

As the regularly-scheduled business was disposed of the Council members burned with expectant interest anxious to hear the airing of police matters previously promised to certain members of Council. They were disappointed, for nothing was discussed but routine matters.

PRESIDENT WON'T TALK

At the conclusion of the session Edward Michalowsky, president of Council, was asked about police matters. He answered emphatically:

"I'm not talking. This borough's had too much unfavorable publicity of this kind, and we don't want any more."

The burgess, Dennis Casper, who had been invited to attend last night's session in a resolution which commanded the police chief to be present, was equally silent although it was later revealed the secret meeting was called on Sunday at his suggestion.

MICHALOWSKY ABSENT

Six members of Council attended the secret meeting, the only absentee being President Michalowsky.

None of the councilmen would talk for publication, but it was learned authentically that Police Chief Patrick Dolan and Burgess Casper had been ordered to "clean up" or get out.

We nearly did it!

YOU can't please all of the people all of the time, but McCann's nearly did it! Several weeks ago we sold over 37 tons of butter (75,920 pounds) in four days and only two customers had a complaint. Of course, the sweet young thing who returned the butter she bought had placed it alongside a cantaloupe and that's one of the things that isn't done if you want to keep the delicate butter flavor. The other customer had placed the butter she bought alongside some of our perfectly good cheese, and we could hardly tell where the butter ended and the cheese began. Our guarantee of "absolute reliability" has built for us a sound retail business that needs no adjustment or returned goods department. We have found that the best way to keep merchandise from being returned is to refuse to accept anything less than McCann quality at our receiving platform.

LLOYD GEORGE AIDS JOBLESS

LONDON June 17.—(A.P.)—The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor party, said this morning that David Lloyd George had offered Ramsay MacDonald's Labor government the whole support of the Liberal party in the House of Commons "to secure a sound and dependable majority for emergency measures to wage war on unemployment."

Talking to the Herald parliamentary correspondent on the eve of reassembly of Parliament tomorrow after the Whitsuntide recess, the veteran Liberal leader showed his anxiety about unemployment and said it was going from bad to worse. He said:

"What is needed is an emergency session working under emergency procedure to pass emergency measures to deal with an unquestionable emergency in trade and unemployment."

If all of the Liberals support the Labor party the MacDonald government should be able to put through any legislation it proposes. The Liberals hold the balance of power in the British Parliament.

TWO SUITS ASK $120,000

Two damage suits, one for $100,000 and the other for $20,000 for personal injuries, were filed against the Pittsburgh Railways Company in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Resina Alfieri and her husband Peter Alfieri, Wilmerding, for injuries sustained to the former asks the large sum, because of hurts to her spine, kidneys and internal organs. She was injured when a car of the company left the rails at Linden and Bessemer avenues, which is known as a safety stop and hurled her to the floor. The accident happened January 24 last, on which date she was in a delicate condition.

Mrs. Anastasia Bernardi, South Side, who boarded a Carrick car at Carson and South Tenth streets, April 21, says the car doors were closed on her, injuring her head and hips and tearing the ligaments of her left shoulder and left elbow. She asks $20,000 damages.

HIGH SCHOOLS IN STATE GAIN

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 17.—(AP)—Pennsylvania, becoming "high school minded," had 4 per cent of its population going to high school between the ninth and twelfth grades in 1930, increasing ten-fold the 1900 high school attendance.

Reasons: Economic changes requiring better preparation for jobs; lack of need for youthful help due to advent of machines; more attractive high school courses; increased desire for higher cultural education.

The State Department of Public Instruction made public these statistics in announcing the 815 four-year and senior high schools in the state this month sent out approximately 38,000 graduates, the highest number in the history of public school education in Pennsylvania.

Pitt Instructor Marries Teacher

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 17.—William M. Harvey of Waynesburg, English instructor at the University of Pittsburgh, and Mary Francis Irwin, Waynesburg High School English instructor, were married here yesterday. Harvey was an instructor in Dormont High School before joining the Pitt faculty. Following a three months' tour of New England and Canada, they will reside at Erie, Pa., where Prof. Harvey will be an instructor in the University of Pittsburgh Junior College.

Canadian Fusiliers Plan Visit to Erie

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(INS)—The Fusiliers (City of London) Regiment of the non-permanent active militia in Canada, will visit Erie, Pa., July 11 to 13, the War Department announced today.

Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, commander of the Third Corps Area, with headquarters at Baltimore, has been instructed to extend all courtesies and facilities to the visitors.

Real Estate

Philip Goodman is having plans prepared for a six-story apartment building at Beacon and Murray avenues, Squirrel Hill. The structure will contain eight stores and 40 apartments.

G. Elkins Knabel has purchased from Mai S. Dorrance 67x147 feet vacant on the east side of Amberson avenue in the Pitcairn place plan for $19,000. The buyer is planning a large home. The Commonwealth Real Estate Company closed the deal.

A large commercial garage on 164x183 feet in West Liberty avenue, Nineteenth Ward, has been deeded by Fred K. Becker to William H. Miller, who conveyed it to the Miller Motor Company.

A double brick dwelling at the southeast corner of Station and Flavel streets, Eleventh Ward, lot 30x67 feet, has been sold by Joseph Gerson to Frank Crantz.

John Kaczynski has sold to Thomas F. Dewey 27x125 feet with a house in Stanton avenue, Tenth Ward. The buyer deeded in exchange 18x87 feet with a house in Baker street, Tenth Ward.

Two brick dwellings in Pearl street, Eighth Ward, lot 40x137 feet, have been sold by Domenico Pero to Patrick B. Paris, et al.

In Bellevue, Louis Koval sold to Samuel S. Morris 90x100 feet with three brick and shingle dwellings in Forest avenue.

A house in Wellesley road, Highland district, has been sold by Thomas E. Gilkey to J. Harold Autenreith. The lot is 50x92 feet.

A property along the Pennsylvania Railroad in Edgeworth at the Sewickley borough line has been sold by Oliver Allen to Fred J. McMillen for $15,000.

George W. McNulty has been named sales manager of the C. L. Saxton Company. He has been in the real estate business in Pittsburgh for a number of years.

A tract of 4½ acres in Way Hollow road, Sewickley Heights, has been sold by Emma F. Shannon, et al, to Margaret Campbell.

The First Methodist Episcopal Church has asked a permit to construct a brick extension at Chartiers avenue and Citadel street, Sheraden, to cost $20,000.

Wife Gets Court Ban on Mate's Foot Display

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—This is a "feature" story, the feet being Peter Freund's.

Mrs. Freund, who doesn't live with him any more, but who owns jointly with him a rooming house at 923 North LaSalle street, has obtained an injunction against the feet. She told Judge Sabath that every time she passes the house she observes the feet—sans shoes and socks—dangling from a window.

That, she said, has a tendency to discourage prospective lodgers. Judge Sabath granted a temporary injunction.

Now is the time to select a good used car. See the Classified Ads for the Third Annual Used Car Sale special bargains.

15 OVERCOME IN AMMONIA BLAST

DETROIT, June 17.—(AP)—A large ammonia pipe in the ice plant of the Detroit Cities Service Company burst late last night, driving hundreds of persons from their homes in the neighborhood.

Fifteen persons were treated for gas poisoning at Receiving Hospital and scores of others were given treatment at the scene of the blast, near Grand River avenue about a mile west of Woodward avenue. A light westerly wind carried the ammonia vapor as far as Woodward.

Max Weiss, engineer in the plant, prevented loss of life, according to firemen, by fighting his way through the poison vapor to shut down three ammonia compressors.

ONE PRESCRIPTION MADE FAMILY DOCTOR FAMOUS

Seldom has any single act been of greater benefit to mankind than that of Dr. Caldwell in 1885, when he wrote the prescription which has carried his fame to the four corners of the earth.

Over and over Dr. Caldwell wrote the prescription as he found men, women and children suffering from those common symptoms of constipation such as coated tongue, bad breath, headaches, gas, nausea, biliousness, no energy, lack of appetite, and similar things.

Demand for this prescription grew so fast because of the pleasant, quick way it relieved such symptoms of constipation, that by 1888 Dr. Caldwell was forced to have it put up ready for use. Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is always ready at any druggist.

COSTS BUT 50c TO HEAL SKIN WITH POSLAM

The most wonderful thing about Poslam is how little is needed to heal even stubborn cases of skin eruptions. Often a single 50c box will clear away a patch of eczema that has been an itching torment for years. All druggists sell it.

When tempted to over-indulge

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

*"Beyond 30 years of age, the mortality among overweights rises rapidly with the age and with the weight," says Dr. Brandreth Symonds in an article in The Medical Record. We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

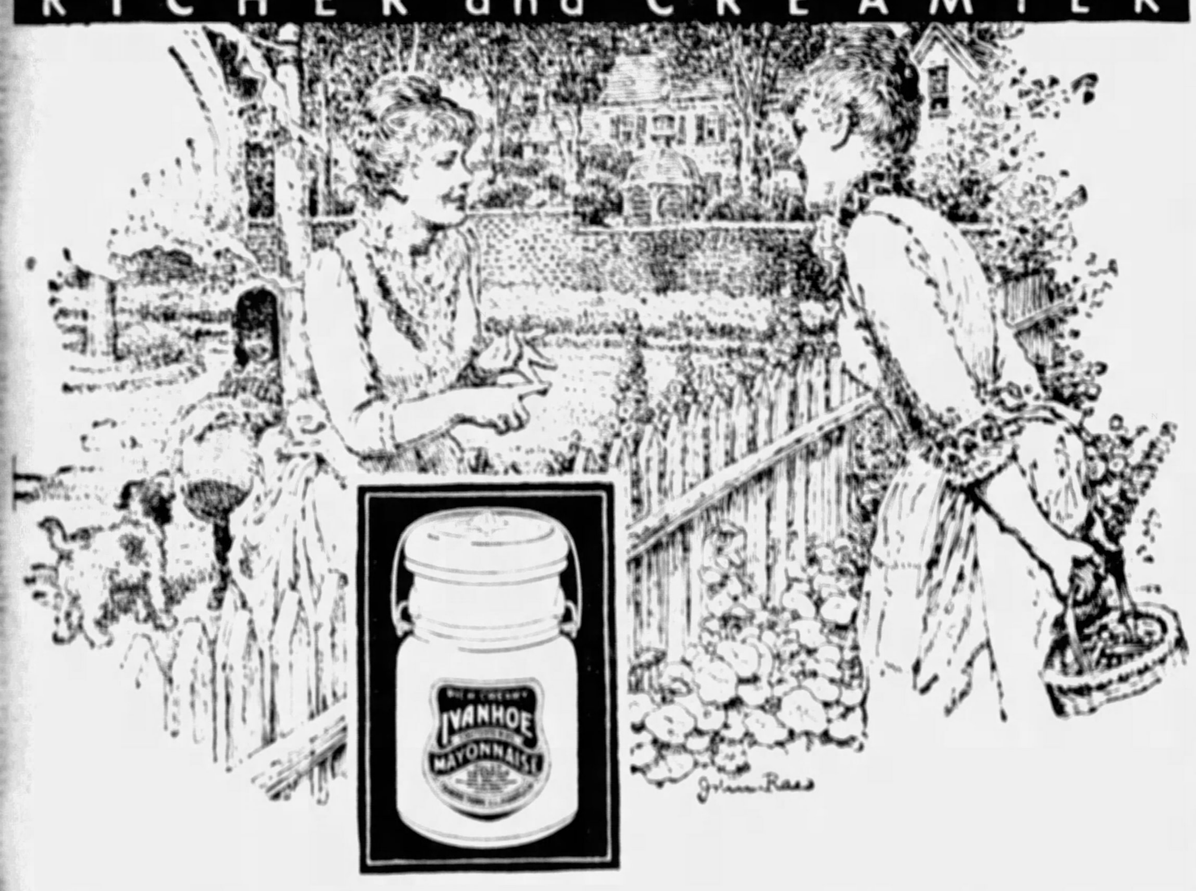
RICHER and CREAMIER



Over the fence in a quaint little town —neighbors talked of this mayonnaise

... They chatted of a neighboring mother's "luck" with a wonderful mayonnaise recipe. How well this new mayonnaise "went" with everything—with vegetables, fruit, fish and meat—with hot dishes or cold dishes. Her's were the most popular salads at home parties, church suppers, anywhere—all due to her mayonnaise!

Golden and smooth and bland—no wonder its fame grew so quickly... until finally, what had been intended for her own family's appetite, grew into a nation's mayonnaise.

Today thousands who insist on good things to eat order this richer, creamier mayonnaise called Ivanhoe!

Buy it now almost anywhere in quarts, pints, half-pints and, for "kitchenette" families—3¼ oz. jars. And with all its distinction, Ivanhoe costs no more than ordinary mayonnaise.

*"SALAD LEAVES" is a unique booklet of salad recipes and balanced menus. Write for your free copy to Harriet Meaker Osborne, Ivanhoe Kitchen, Auburn, N. Y.

U. S. CONDEMNS FEAR 8 MISSING ALCOHOL CARGO ON LAKE SLAIN

Sixteen hundred twelve gallons of alcohol were ordered condemned and forfeited to the government by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today.

The alcohol was seized by prohibition agents May 12 in a freight car from Trenton, N. J., in the Manchester yards of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railway. It was marked "spray flowers" and was consigned to Mattress, Inc., a plant and flower store here.

Authorities agree that this is a fictitious firm name.

No one appeared in court today to claim the alcohol, which will be used for medicinal and scientific purposes as provided for in the national prohibition act.

TOLEDO, O., June 17.—(INS.)—With the silent waters of Lake Erie still holding secret the fate of the eight prominent Toledo men who disappeared from a speedboat early Saturday, Sheriff Joseph Zimmerman today expressed fear that the men have been captured or slain by rum-runners or hi-jackers.

Postmaster General Walter Brown has been asked to obtain further co-operation of every coastguard craft in this part of the Great Lakes in the search for the missing men. Brown is a personal friend and political associate of Charles H. Nauts, collector of internal revenue at Toledo, who is one of the missing men.

The missing men are Nauts, his son, Herbert, an attorney; Arthur E. Kruse, Franklin B. Jones, Frank Miller, Henry J. Hainbuch, John Meyer and John Likogach.

NOTHING ELSE IS SO IMPORTANT

Well Known Carpenter Tells of His Own Gain.

When a man who has been really sick recovers his health, nothing else in life seems so important as of a great value to himself and his family. Here is the case of Mr. Edward Gamsch, a well known carpenter of Pittsburgh. When one of his buddies commented on how well he was looking, Mr. Gamsch said: "Yes, I am as well as ever I was in my life, but only six months ago I was a perfect wreck and I longed for the day when I could be my able to work with any satisfaction, but today I feel capable of any task. Last winter I caught cold after cold. Working in cold and damp new buildings was not the best for a man in my condition, but I took simple remedies and appeared to get over these colds outwardly, at least. However, about this time my stomach began to get troublesome. I had little attacks of indigestion. These soon grew worse, until I could retain only the simplest things on my stomach. I lost strength. My bowels became disordered. Then I began to go down hill at an alarming rate. I got so nervous I could not sleep, and I had to quit work. We are not rich people and I had a hard time getting along.

"One day a druggist told me he thought Wurlitz Tonic might help me. I did not think much of such medicines, but he told me of another case in town of the same general description, where Wurlitz Tonic had been of real benefit. I bought a bottle and from that day to this I have seen a steady improvement. I got over my dizziness, my bowels became normal and my stomach caused me no more trouble. Of course, I was careful, because a man who suffered as I did with my stomach takes no chances, but now I just forget that I have any such organ and go on well again. When I think of all I went through, and how quickly and inexpensively I got well, I cannot say too much for this wonderful medicine.

"Wurlitz Tonic has hundreds of similar cases to its credit, for the stomach, kidneys and bowels, and all the diseases that follow their disorder, it is highly recommended by many. You can prove its value by purchasing a bottle from Dow's, Mack & Taggart's, MacKeever, or any other first class druggist. (Adv.)

Wanted—More Adjectives To Sound the Glory Of This Big Show

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

WHEN I ASKED Col. Dexter Fellows, chief of the adjective department in the Ringling, Barnum & Bailey Shows, how they had persuaded those savage Ubangi belles to come to America, he confided to me that they were told they would see lots of queer people on the tour of the circus. They looked yesterday as if they pitied the poor civilized females whose lips haven't been flattened out into breakfast trays to enable them to carry their food in plain view and consume it at leisure. Go out to Point Breeze this afternoon or tonight to see the Ubangis if you want to know how poorly designed your own anatomy is. They don't need racquets to play tennis.

George Seibel

From the first glimpse of the Ubangs to the exciting moment when a Llama — the animal from the Andes, not the high-priest from Tibet —got sulky because it had lost a race and proceeded to climb a tier of 75-cents seats, this circus came up to all the adjectives supplied by Col. Fellows.

Just why that Llama wanted to run away—whether it got homesick for the Cordilleras, or felt hurt because someone called it a baby camel—ought to be investigated. Because insubordination under the Big Top will not do. Suppose Hugo Zacchini, the human cannon ball, should go on strike! They couldn't fire him because he was refusing to be fired. But as long as he lets himself get fired, he won't get fired.

And suppose those Zebras—Sing Sing model 1929—should feel hurt because all the beauteous equestriennes rode on the every-day horses not specially designed by Lucile or Poiret.

LET LUICITA DO IT

Maybe Miss Luicita Leers is the proper person to do it. Luicita is good to gaze upon, and when she flies through the air from one trapeze to another it would make an expert angel look to his wings. For Luicita really, a few new adjectives ought to be provided. Col. Fellows ought to buy a new Thesaurus.

Lillian Leitzel is another of these aerial shooting stars, still doing that endless whirl which has worn out four snare drummers every season trying to keep up with her gyrations.

In fact, the air under this Big Top is densely populated by flying creatures so fair and agile that one tired citizen was heard to remark, as he craned his neck, "Can this be heaven?"

But the huge Sea Elephant, carted around on a truck, dispelled any such ideas. There are no marine creatures in heaven except the baby behemoths brought by Job. It wouldn't be possible to supply fish enough for all the trained seals—two of which, in this show, engage in a musical contest—one of them playing "America" while the other blows "God Save the King."

DOVES OF ALL DYES

At one time there were doves of every color fluttering around the rings. Ring doves, very likely, hatched from Easter eggs. Again there was an irruption of dogs who performed all sorts of canine feats. And the horses—here was a magnificient company that even Gallant Fox might be proud to associate with. There was one curvetting steed, the hue of maple syrup or golden oak, which the Tired Business Man said he'd buy if his Ford would be taken in trade. But better than all the horses were those equestriennes, and an expert who has officiated at many beauty shows and escaped alive voices the verdict that there have never been so many dainty, exquisite, fascinating and graceful ladies assembled to make those horses show the mettle of their pasture.

Note—Adjectives in preceding paragraph still supplied by Col. Fellows.

He should really have supplied more than he did. There were such funny clowns, from tiny midgets to terrific giants, clowns adipose and clowns attenuated, that adjectives ran low. My particular favorite was a gentleman with a Sinaitic frontispiece who appeared first as a Chinese Mandarin, then as a Scotch Laird, and last as a capering Cupid.

The living statuary with flesh whitewashed like marble, the comic horseplay of the Reiffenach riders, the dances executed by Con Colleano on the wire, and the triple somersault of the flying Codona all call for more adjectives—resonant, glittering, kaleidoscopic, decorative and exultant. But where get them? Col. Fellows' supply was exhausted. This typewriter is beginning to clog. We shall have to give it up, for only the broad vowels of the Ubangi language could do justice to the greatest show on earth! Several thousand children were the guest of Syria Shrine at a special morning performance today.

Knoxville to Hear Pupils in Play

"The Toy Shop," which was presented last week in Brentwood by the pupils of Miss Helen A. Thomas, will be presented Thursday night in St. Mark's Evangelical Protestant Church, Knoxville. Miss Vera Thomas will take active part in presenting the operetta. Misses Helen and Vera Thomas are members of the Thomas-Williams trio.

"MIDNIGHT MYSTERY" CURRENT FILM IN SHERIDAN

"Midnight Mystery," with Betty Compson and Lowell Sherman, is the picture which opened in the Sheridan Square yesterday.

Miss Compson plays the part of a writer of mystery fiction, whose whole idea of life is wrapped up in the deepest mystery—murders, disappearances and other unnatural disturbances in the regular routine of things.

Raymond Hatton plays the part of the fiance of the young authoress. He is highly amused, yet impatient at her absorbing interest in events mysterious.

The subsequent events, in which Mr. Sherman and Hugh Trevor take most active parts, make the story one crammed with mysterious complications—dark rooms, wicked-looking shadows, eery noises and an exceedingly stormy night.

Other features on the bill are a comedy, "Hot Bridge," an Aesop fable, "Noah Knew His Ark," and news events.

For those in doubt as to what electric refrigeration to buy . .

THERMOMETER TEST!

YOU don't have to take anyone's word about electric refrigerators. You can see results. Kelvinator is making this possible at a special demonstration this week. Kelvinator wants you to know the facts.

Learn What "World's Fastest Freezing" Really Means!

So, for this entire week, we are demonstrating Kelvinator's refrigeration efficiency in a test to which no other electric refrigerator has ever been subjected—publicly. Don't miss this opportunity to get the facts about electric refrigeration values!

See With Your Own Eyes!

We call this the Thermometer Test. We place a thermometer in the Kelvinator ice tray. Then we pour in boiling water! Water at 212 degrees! You can actually see how quickly Kelvinator's wonderful refrigeration cools the water. It requires but 5 minutes for Kelvinator to take 100 degrees of heat out of the water. You will see Kelvinator freeze water to solid ice in less than 80 minutes. Only Kelvinator provides this automatic super-fast freezing—because Kelvinator alone has the famous Iso-Thermic Tubes.

Kelvinator Alone Gives Automatic 4-Way Cold!

World's Fastest Freezing is one of the features of the new 4-Way Cold Kelvinator, providing four separate and entirely automatic degrees for—(1) extremely fast automatic freezing of ice and desserts; (2) a special Cold Storage compartment with below-freezing cold for keeping meats, fish, game, ice cream, etc., indefinitely; (3) steady cold for freezing regular ice supply; (4) controlled cold in food compartments always below 50 degrees.

Somewhere in Mountains Lon Chaney Is Building Himself a Cabin

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 17.

SOMEWHERE up in the mountains, Lon Chaney is building himself a cabin, and resting in preparation for his next talking picture at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Understand this will be "Cheribibi," a story of the French prison colony on Devil's Island. Lon plays a convict who escapes and returns home to assume the identity of his enemy.

Gaston Leroux, a past-master of weird tales, is the author of "Cheribibi." He is best known on the screen for his "Phantom of the Opera," in which Lon worked before he left Universal.

Lon Chaney

Many people don't know it, but there was concern felt at one time as to whether Hollywood's man of a thousand faces would ever be able to make a talking picture. He had an affliction in his throat. This has been remedied however, and nothing stands in the way now.

DOUG CAN'T RETIRE

On Saturday last I came upon Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Talmadge and Sam Taylor talking in front of Mary Pickford's bungalow at the United Artists Studio.

They were laughing about the rumor of Doug's retiring.

"I'd love to retire but I can't," explained Doug. "I am a member of United Artists and it would be impossible.

"If I did, though, the first thing I would do would be to get a house in London. This would be the center of my activities. Then I'd follow golf and polo all over Europe. During a part of every year, I'd return to California and live at my ranch. I haven't a doubt in the world but what I could forget the picture business for 10 years and be perfectly happy. Beyond that, why worry?"

Norma would go to the south of France. She has the queerest sort of ambition, too, one you'd never suspect. She'd like to go with an expedition to excavate one of the old Pharaohs' tombs in Egypt.

Norma Talmadge

Incidentally, Norma was looking very pretty in blue dress and hat to match. To me, she's always been one of the loveliest women of the screen.

It's funny they'd like to get away from what they're doing, just like the rest of us. The chances are they won't though, any more than we will.

ENGAGEMENT HINTED

A brand-new romance is on between little Dorothy Lee, R-K-O player, and James Fiddler, a Hollywood publicity man. If their engagement hasn't been announced by the time this is printed, it will be in a few days. At least, I have the straightest sort of a tip to this effect. I imagine the news may come as something of a surprise to Hollywood, too, for Dorothy has been going around with Fred Waring, the leader of "Warings Pennsylvanians" band.

You'll probably recall Dorothy as the dancing partner of Bert Wheeler in "Rio Rita" and as the Gypsy girl in "Cuckoos."

Moravians Discuss Organization Basis

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 17.—(AP.)—After several days of group meetings, the Moravian Synod of America went into session as a committee of the whole to discuss the basis of organization for the northern province of America and Canada. One proposal would place the organization on a district basis, thus giving autonomy to several smaller divisions.

CHURCH SCORES RITCHIE, RACES

CAMBRIDGE, Md., June 17.—(AP.)—Horse racing and Gov. Ritchie were criticized at the closing session of the annual Maryland conference of the Methodist Protestant Church.

The report of the committee on moral reform, in which was included reference to prohibition, horse racing and Gov. Ritchie was adopted without debate.

It called upon the Methodist Protestants to continue the fight for a state enforcement act and to support only candidates who favor the dry law. The report regretted the "friendly attitude of Gov. Ritchie toward the prohibition law."

Referring to horse racing, the report said:

"From all over the nation gamblers infest our state, bringing moral and economic loss. We regret that many of our officials and much of our press by example and influence encourage this gambling spirit and practice."

PRIEST ADMITS STILL, FINED

SCHUYLER, Neb., June 17.—(AP.)—The Rev. Antonine Folla, 47, pastor of Holy Trinity Church at Rheun, was fined $500 and given a suspended jail sentence of one year after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing a liquor still. The priest was paroled to his attorney by District Judge F. L. Spear.

Father Folla was arrested by deputy sheriffs last week after they found a still near his home. The priest said he operated the still to have "brandy" for his friends and not for commercial purposes.

Dog, War Hero, to Get Military Funeral

DENNISON, O., June 17.—A military funeral is being planned for Bing, the 12-year-old bulldog mascot of Company E, One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Machine Gun Battalion, Thirty-seventh division. The dog gassed at the front, cited by the French government and paid a $60 soldier's bonus, had to be chloroformed because of illness at the hospital of a New Philadelphia veterinarian.

Born in a tent at Camp Sheridan, the dog was smuggled aboard a transport and taken overseas. He was credited with saving the lives of many of his human comrades by detecting the scent of gas numerous times.

G. O. P. NOMINEE FALLS DEAD

CAMP CLATSOP, Ore., June 17.—(AP.)—State Senator George W. Joseph, colorful figure in Oregon's public life, who won the Republican nomination for governor at the recent primaries as a "dry" candidate, died suddenly here yesterday of a blood clot on the heart.

Joseph was 58 years old. As a youth he was a sheep herder.

His political controversies brought Joseph sharply into conflict with members of the State Supreme Court, which body recently barred him from legal practice.

The nominee's charges against the court included assertions that some of its members were interested professionally in certain cases before it.

In the primary last May 16, Joseph sought vindication, and the nomination over the opposition.

DIVORCE PARTS TWO ARTISTS

RENO, Nev., June 17.—(AP.)—Julian Lamar, portrait painter, was granted a divorce here from Lucy H. K. Lamar, New York society woman and artist.

Mrs. Lamar did not appear in the case. Lamar charged his wife was jealous and interfered with his work.

He said she was extravagant and put him deeply into debt; that she opened his mail and extracted checks and withdrew funds from a joint savings account, leaving him only a small balance. In fits of anger, he said, she would slap his face and pull his hair.

RAID ON VENICE BEAUTY BALKED

VENICE, Italy, June 17.—(AP.)—By one vigorous stroke, the Academy of Italy has saved Venice from mutilation in the interests of commerce.

Created a few months ago, the Academy of Italy was granted by king and government authority over any structural project touching beautiful buildings, streets, squares or sites anywhere in Italy.

Its disapproval of the Venice project has the force of the government behind it, and means instant failure of the proposed development.

The case at first was that the municipality of Venice wished to dig a canal, a little canal, for a short cut between the ends of a bosomy bend in the Grand Canal. The municipality had approved it. The money was ready.

The Academy of Italy rejected the proposal. Throughout Italy the academy's action has met with tremendous acclaim.

Mate Loses Suit Against Wife Who Tried Suicide

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 17.—Wilbur Ullon, of Waynesburg, was refused a divorce from May I. Ullon. Last week Mrs. Ullon made an unsuccessful attempt at suicide at Cameron, W. Va., as a result of despondency said to have resulted from her husband's suit.

FATHER AND 2 BOYS DROWN

CINCINNATI, June 17.—(AP.)—A father and his two sons were drowned in the Ohio River at Fernbank dam, near here. The victims were John H. Mayer and Jack, 15, and William, 11.

The trio had been picking blackberries along the river bank and then went swimming. It was believed the father died in an unsuccessful attempt to save his sons from drowning.

WIDOW IN TEARS AT BLAST TRIAL

READING, Pa., June 17.—(AP.)—While the widow of one of the pedestrians killed by the collapse of walls in the still explosion here February 19 sat in tears in the courtroom, four of the men charged with manslaughter in connection with the affair, went on trial.

Mrs. Thomas Maggario, widow of one of the victims, attended the sessions. Her interest seemed to be more than the defendants'. Alex Klingerman, John Mancuso, John Mango and Charles Biscontini, all of Philadelphia. The latter three were taken from the burning building by firemen, who also rescued Luke Bierman, of New York. Bierman, who was also to go to trial, did not appear in court, and Judge Mays ordered his $6,000 bond forfeited.

ARREST DOCTOR AS BOOTLEGGER

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., June 17.—(AP.)—Dr. T. C. Harter, former member of the Legislature from Columbia County, was arrested here on charges of bootlegging.

A youth taken in custody last night informed the police he bought liquor from Dr. Harter. A state policeman entered the physician's office and bought a pint of whisky, he claims, from the doctor.

In the raid that followed the alleged purchase, the police said they found seven gallons of whisky.

CHAPTER XI.

Said Eaton to Jameson, at the club on the occasion of a holiday dinner and raffle: "You were all wrong about Miss Murdock!"

"Whom? And why especially? I'm always wrong."

"My secretary. I had a talk with her recently and she told me she wouldn't marry the last man on earth."

"Well, who would?" inquired Jameson reasonably. "Or rather, who could? The competition would be something fierce."

"Oh, be sensible, you incomparable fool! I mean, the girl's modern. Her job means more to her than love in a walk-up."

"Are there any?" Jameson mused.

"Any what, for heaven's sake?"

"Modern girls," said Jameson.

Eaton caught his friend's arm and suggested: "Come on and have a drink, and let's find some one for bridge."

He was more light-hearted than his subsequent moderate consumption of Scotch warranted. He needn't worry about losing the best secretary a man ever had. He believed her. She had a quality of sincerity which impressed him enormously * * *

As the winter progressed Eaton intrusted Anne with more and more of his private affairs, giving her power of attorney for use when he was away on his frequent trips.

Late that spring Anne was with Eaton in the conference room at an informal meeting with important clients, the Hatton Woolen Mills people. Half a dozen men sat around the long table.

The Hatton concern had recently purchased a smaller competitive company, and a new advertising campaign had been discussed and tentatively agreed upon.

Business Meeting

Anne, notebook in hand, listened to Lawrence Eaton, who was speaking quietly to the president, and Mayne, the general manager.

"May I make a suggestion?" he said.

"Of course," Hatton responded with his habitual refrigerated geniality. "Always glad to listen to any suggestions from you, Eaton."

"It's this, then: In taking over another concern, I know it is the custom to replace a number of their men with men of your own. There is, I suppose, much to be said for this. You, for instance, have your own policies, your routine, your particular way of going about things. And it is doubtless more difficult to convert a new company to your ways than to put your own men in and carry on without a break. But I'd like to make a plea for the men in the Smithson Company who have given years of their lives to building up the business.

"It is no light thing for them to be thrown out of work. All the kind, regretful words in the world, coupled with bonuses or two months' salary, won't help them. They've lost much more than a job, Mr. Hatton. They've lost—if they are good men, and I presume they are or their company would never have reached competitive proportions—they've lost the very mainspring of their existence.

Eaton's Plea

"Wouldn't it be possible, Mr. Hatton, to utilize such men as are still active factors in the Smithson Company, taking the trouble to train them to your methods, interesting them in the larger scope of the new concern? It seems to me that it would be very much worth while. They can't have held their jobs so long without having their own ideas. And those ideas may be—probably are—helpful and constructive."

"There's something in what you say," Hatton admitted, with his maybe-yes-maybe-no manner. He turned to Mayne. "Day, the old superintendent, has a good record," he remarked casually.

Mayne nodded. "He's responsible for most of the improvements during the last ten years, I believe."

"It certainly won't harm your prestige," suggested Eaton, "to be known as one of the few companies which, upon buying out a competitor, refuse to follow the ancient and honorable—although the latter term is open to argument—custom of firing all the lesser executives of the purchased concern."

"I'll think it over," said Hatton, which was, with him, tantamount to an agreement.

Hatton Hard

Back in his office, Eaton asked Anne: "Do you think I put it over?"

"I certainly do."

"I hope so," he went on. "I've sat in on dozens of these conferences, always with the gloomy mental picture of men given the gate after years of service. It's been a dream of mine to persuade some open-minded concern to do the generous thing, even at the expense of a more difficult task of reorganization.

"Hatton's a tough nut to crack. When we got that first account, I was up against it. He rarely committed himself. Their advertising methods were old-fashioned in the extreme; their copy wore crinolines. It took everything I had to persuade him to a tremendous increase in appropriation and the modern slant.

"He was under the impression that he had hired a couple of bright boys to write pretty copy and draw pretty pictures for him. It took a long time to prove to him that we did more than that. He wanted his work done in six months. I said, 'No.' That interested him. He wasn't used to being crossed. I made him give us a year—which wasn't time enough, really—and we sent a man into the field to make a complete survey; we sent others to the dealers; we worked like nailers.

"That was my first big job on succeeding my uncle. And Hatton has grudgingly admitted to me that their returns from their half-million yearly expenditure have been enormous.

Anne Understands Boss

"During that campaign I ate, drank and slept wool—from the sheep to the blanket. We gave them a new trade-mark; we concentrated on advertising quality—the generations of tradition and integrity back of them.

"And now, I hope, I've won him over to my pet theory: that it's a waste of good material to throw your competitor's old employes out when you take them over." He paused and laughed. "I appear to be in the lecture room," he said apologetically.

"I was terribly interested," Anne told him. It was true. But if it hadn't been, she would have said so, anyway. She was a good secretary.

"I know it. I watched you during the first heated moments of the conference. You have a most expressive face. You should never play poker. I can always tell when things are going well or badly by your eyes, and because I rely on your judgment, you've become a sort of barometer."

Anne laughed. She felt near her employer in the garrulous, boyish moods which always follower a victory or the premise of one. Going home that night she thought how well she had grown to know him.

By FAITH BALDWIN

She saw him practically every day. She saw the quick temper which he controlled so well, the vitality, the occasional pettiness, the worry over delays, the rare evasions.

But she saw, too, the manner in which he handled big issues, the sureness of his judgments and decisions, and the never-sleeping vision—the dreamer's vision—which was not locked in his desk at closing time, but which went everywhere with him, daring, broad of scope, working, planning, seeing ahead.

At Eaton's Home

It was this vision, coupled with the practical mind, the grasp of a situation and the dogged attention to detail which made him a big man. So big a man, in fact, that Anne found herself judging all other men by this difficult standard.

She was seeing him also in his home. For lately she had been called often to work there with him at night. At first they had worked in the office, but the office was never quite silent; there was always some one there. The telephone never slept.

Now, when Eaton had a piece of work to do which required the maximum of concentration, he found it practical to work in his small study at the apartment. On these occasions Linda would be out, returning late to drag her husband and his secretary from their work and insist that they rest—have something to eat and drink—before Anne started on the long trip home.

Upon one such occasion:

"My word," said Linda, appearing in the study some time after midnight, "you two are gluttons for punishment!"

The night was unreasonably warm. Eaton, his hair damp and lank on his forehead, one cheek branded with the mark of a blue pencil, a green shade over his eyes, looked up blindly, as if Linda's cool voice had called him back from another world and he could not adjust himself. Anne, pale with fatigue, the collar of her dress wilted and soiled, looked up, too, from the smaller typewriting desk which Eaton had put in the room for her. She smiled at her employer's wife's frank admiration.

Linda Stops Work

Linda had dined out and been to a play. She was wearing a charming gown of sea-green chiffon, from which her shoulders rose superbly.

"Gosh, but she's lovely!" thought Anne with a miserable feeling of depression which certainly wasn't envy.

"I've ordered food," Linda told them briskly, "and you two will kindly rise and follow me. Miss Murdock looks ready to drop, Larry. Simon Legree was an angel of mercy compared with you. Don't you know the girl has to sleep long enough to be able to conduct your nefarious business tomorrow without dying at the post?"

"Ten minutes?" begged Eaton, but he observed Anne with sudden anxiety. She did look white; the dark blue eyes were heavy and circled with fatigue.

"No, not five! Come along this instant! Roberts has sandwiches, coffee and fruit cup and things. I dodged the Garrets' supper party in order to break up this little tete-a-tete!"

Eaton rose, filled with compunction, yet casting a reluctant glance at the desk. It had been pleasant to work there in the quiet room at top speed, with Anne beside him, silent and quick and—and near.

"Nice reputation you're giving me!" he told Linda.

"My dear, you deserve it. You forget that Miss Murdock is not of your superior sex, does not stand five-feet-ten or so, does not weigh 160 pounds or whatever it is."

Linda's Suspicion

"I'm sorry," Eaton told Anne. "Why didn't you stop me?"

Anne rose, tired in every muscle. "Why should I?" she asked him. "I'm not tired. I was glad to get the work done. I—enjoyed it," she said with a faint suggestion of defiance, looking at Linda.

A day or so later, Mrs. Eaton, motoring to a polo game at Fort Hamilton with Jameson, remarked resignedly:

"I tried to persuade Larry to come but he's working today, and then catching a train to Washington. He likes polo. He used to play on a scratch team, but he hasn't lately."

Jameson answered, his hands steady on the wheel of the high-geared roadster: "He'll be busy with golf soon."

"Oh, he plays so sporadically; too hard when he does, too rarely to do him any real good. If it weren't for that trainer who comes in and puts him through the mill every morning he wouldn't keep fit." After a moment she said: "Dick, I think Larry's little secretary is falling in love with him!"

"That's a—pity," Jameson answered carefully. "Does he know it?"

"Not yet. Perhaps she doesn't, either. Poor Andrews was mad about him, and he never guessed until she left. She went off at the deep end, hysterical and all that. No, he didn't tell me. It came to me in a round-about way from the sister of one of the girls in the art department. And all she said was: 'I understand Miss Andrews has had a nervous breakdown.'

Jamson's Friendship

"That was enough for me. But Larry was deaf, dumb and blind while she was with him. I was sorry for her, and I'm sorry for this girl. She's pretty and young, and life surely holds more for her than sitting around taking orders from a man who doesn't know she exists except for his business convenience."

Jameson was not so sure that Eaton didn't know Anne existed. But he said merely: "It happens often. Office wives."

"Is that what you call them?" asked Linda, delighted.

"Not original with me, I assure you. It's as current a term as T. B. M."

"Perhaps; but I never heard it before. Office wives. It's odd," mused Linda, "the complete separation of personality."

"How do you mean?"

"Office and home. In a way that little Murdock girl knows far more about Larry than I do."

Jameson was Lawrence Eaton's friend. He liked him. He admired him. But Jameson was in love with Eaton's wife. He was an honorable man. He was careful never to overstep the limits he had imposed upon himself. He was grateful for what she gave him: a close, understanding friendship.

He might easily have said something, given her a hint; he knew he was much in her confidence. But he said nothing, for his emotions were involved. Still, he was no more than human and could not help voicing a warning, not, be it said to his credit, in malice.

Not Alarmed

"The little Murdock is a different type from Miss Andrews, Linda. It would be one thing to awaken to the devotion of an unattractive woman of 40 and another to awaken to—"

"Anne's?" Linda was thoughtful. "I suppose so. But I'm not alarmed. Larry has had his moments. I've known and said nothing. There was nothing to say. Besides, we understand each other. He knows that I would not tolerate anything of the sort you suggest—any more than he would tolerate its counterpart in me."

After a moment they spoke of other things and presently, reaching the Fort, parked the car and took their seats. The beautiful ponies raced down the long green stretch.

Overhead a plane was stunting lazily; not far off were the blue waters of the Narrows. The band struck up—some commonplace ballad of the day, but oddly stirring in that setting. The captain of one of the teams galloped past, a heavy man, a perfect performer. Settling back, Linda said:

"What a game. What a game!"

She had forgotten about Anne and Eaton. But Jameson had not.

If Anne were really in love with her employer? If, as was on the cards, Eaton came to a realization of that fact?

Loves Linda

Not that there was any comparison between the two women, thought Jameson, who loved Linda and was loyal to her, but he and Larry Eaton were two different men. Eaton was immersed in the business he'd built up—and Linda frankly had no interest in his work save to deplore that he gave too much time to it. But Anne's interest was probably keen, doubtless unfeigned. There was a meeting place made to order.

Between Linda and Larry there was no common ground, pondered Jameson uncomfortably, unless it was the ground of physical passion. But that, after 10 years of slow drifting apart, Jameson doubted, or preferred to doubt.

"Goal for the Whites!" exclaimed Linda.

He turned and smiled into her brown eyes. If Larry, in his turn, should fall in love with Anne, what of Linda then? Linda was a sportswoman; more than that, she was a good sport, thought Jameson, and permitted himself to dream under the arching blue sky.

In the office that quiet Sunday afternoon Eaton and Anne were working together. A long-distance call came for him and Anne listened to his terse answers:

"No, I can't possibly • • • No, I'm leaving for Washington tonight to be gone three days • • • Mr. Sanders is out of the question. He has to carry on here.'

Anne Gets Trip

At last he hung up and turned to Anne. "How can I go to Chicago and be in Washington at the same time?" he asked her.

He shook his head, frowning, and went on. "Air mail won't do. There's a hitch in the tentative plans I sent out to the Lawson Lock people. Somebody has to explain it to them. Lawson is convalescing from the 'flu.' He can't come here. He doesn't think any one in his outfit understands English, apparently, so he won't send a substitute. Sanders would do but he can't leave."

He ran his hand through his thick hair and stared at Anne. She'd been with him the better part of a year; he had come to trust her absolutely. She knew how to think for herself, and for him. She'd been over the Lawson Lock plan a dozen times with him.

Anne waited.

Suddenly he asked: "Look here, Miss Murdock, could you go?"

She had been thinking: If he asks me to go; wondering if he considered her capable. Yet his question came as a shock and brought with it a thrill of pure delight with an increased sense of power. She nodded, grave eyes intent on his.

"Of course I'll go," she said.

And Eaton thought, still watching her: "Of course she would, the darling!" said Eaton to himself.

SUBURBS FAVOR LIBERAL SUNDAYS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM DFARR

Somewhere in our lopsided makeup there is a warm spot for court tipstaves. So, in this, his moment of disappointment, we sympathize with Mr. (Butsy) Joyce, who is the tipstaff for Judge Ambrose B. Reid.

Mr. Joyce caused to be inserted in the papers an advertisement which set forth that he would pay a $2 reward for the return of his false teeth. Make no mistake; Mr. Joyce had lost them.

A gentleman, who lived in the farthermost recesses of the North Side, called up Mr. Joyce with the welcome news that he had found a set of false teeth which were Mr. Joyce's for the asking, if not the reward.

Our favorite tipstaff journeyed to the distant address, only to discover that these were not the Joyce molars.

As a favor to Sidewalks and as a favor to Mr. Joyce, if you run across the article will you make haste to return it?

The dog races apparently have come to stay. Last summer there was one dog track—Bridgeville—and this summer there are two—Bridgeville and New Kensington.

The races in themselves are entertaining, we think. One sees the dogs at the post and at the finish and all the way around the track. They go so fast that frequently the spectator confuses one dog with another. And often times the winner shoots ahead in the home stretch, which is exciting.

Public gambling is, of course, not recognized in Pennsylvania, but the contribution system enables the spectators to return home richer or poorer. By this system you contribute $2 (or more, but no less) to the upkeep of the dog which strikes your fancy. The race officials describe these contributions as the purse for the dog. If your dog should happen to win, your contribution is returned with interest.

The crowds have been large at both tracks, and probably 40 per cent of the audiences are women.

Nine or ten races are held six nights in the week, the distances varying from three-sixteenths to five-sixteenths of a mile. The dogs (they're really greyhounds) chase a mechanical rabbit, which moves by electricity, but they seldom catch it. The rabbit always crosses the finish line first, but, sad to tell, there is no rabbit purse.

Will Rogers Says:

BOSTON, June 17.

Mr. Hoover is going to sign. I will give him credit. He didn't stall around and keep everybody in doubt. He just lined up like it was cold swimming, shut his eyes, gritted his teeth and is pouncing in. You see the whole thing come up for no reason at all during the heat of the campaign when Norris switched to Smith. Why, Borah and a bunch of them got panicky, rushed to Mr. Hoover and told him in order to save the farmer vote to promise to call a special session and revise the tariff. He naturally did as advised. Now he can't find out who wanted it revised. Not even Borah and his gang, Norris' support, which scared them, was him and his immediate family.

Yours,
WILL.

Kent Starts to Serve Long Term in Penitentiary

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dean Ward Kent, a successful young college graduate, gets drunk while celebrating on New Year's Eve. His automobile, going at top speed, crashed into another machine and two persons are fatally injured. Kent is charged with manslaughter and sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Duncan Morgan, a handsome chap who had been a bank clerk, is sentenced to the penitentiary for robbery. He has been in prison before and does not fear the new sentence.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

"Here y're, Kid . . . at the Big House!"

The deputy's tone was as impersonal and business-like as that of a subway guard at the end of the line. But to Dean Kent the words sounded as though shouted by a shrouded, funereal figure at the Gates of Despair.

They tumbled on his eardrums and ricocheted into his brain and knocked from the pedestal of reason that last vestige of desperate hope which had lingered even after the judge had jiggled the dice-box of justice and thrown for him a "natural;" even after the deputies had come and taken him away on the train; even after they had pushed him into the drab, forbidding "Black Maria" which met him at the station.

He had felt through all that it could not be. Something must happen. He would never go to prison. Not Dean Kent. It was all an accident from the start—the crash, the arrest, the swift trial, the sentence, the train ride, the—No, it could not be! Yet—here before him were the huge, massive walls of the state prison. Silhouetted against the evening sky was the solitary figure of a tower guard beside a machine-gun. The great steel gates of the prison ground had grunted open. The van entered. Dean Kent felt a sharp tug at the steel bracelet on his wrist. The deputy to whom he was manacled was crawling out. The prison gates beyond were closing and Dean Kent, wistfully and forlornly turned his pale, pathetic face back for one last look over his shoulder, at the outside world, the world on top of which he had sat.

In Penitentiary
Kent Is Questioned by Guard Captain

"Come on . . . let's go!" one of the deputies urged.

The other led the way through a door graced with the legend, "John Wallace, Captain of Yard." They entered a small office where a heavy-set, heavy-jowled, heavy-eyebrowed man sat at a table. The first deputy spread a document before him.

"The commitment papers, sir," he said. For a brief instant the small, beady eyes of Capt. Wallace searched the drawn face of the prisoner. Then the gaze shifted to the papers. "Huh! Manslaughter . . . seven years," a deep, hollow voice intoned. This was followed by a rapid fire of questions: "First time in prison?" . . . "Yes." . . . "SIR, TO ME!" . . . "Yes, sir." . . . "How old?" . . . "Twenty-four, sir." . . . "Ever in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps?" . . . "No, sir." . . . "Use tobacco?" . . . "Yes, sir." . . . "Dope?" . . . "No, sir."

His questioner brought the inquisition to an abrupt end with:

"Frisk him!"

Wants Photograph of Anne Marlow

The metal bracelet was taken from Kent's wrist, and as he rubbed the red indentation in his flesh the deputies ransacked his pockets, tossing their contents on the table. Capt. Wallace listlessly pawed over the miscellaneous collection — a watch and chain, notebook, letters, handkerchief, a West African "lucky" pocket-piece—those personal effects which become such an intricate factor in the daily life of every man. He made a heap of everything save a package of cigarets. This he shoved toward the prisoner.

"You can keep these," he said, magnanimously. Kent reached out and then hesitated.

"I'd—I'd like—"

"What?" snapped the captain.

"That locket," said Kent.

"Oh-ho, I see. Let's look in it."

Kent made as if to restrain him, but the Captain darted an authoritative flash at him. He pried open the locket and a small, oval picture fell out.

"Humph! Not a bad-looking jane," he commented. Then he asked: "Married?" Kent shook his head. The sight of his picture caused his Adam's apple to swell in his throat. He was speechless.

"Oh, take it," said Wallace.

Kent snatched up the picture of Anne Marlow and ran his fingers over the face as though to rub off the contamination of profane hands. Wallace indicated the rest of his effects and grinned.

Given Number
Supplied With Regulation Prison Uniform

"You can have those when you blow here," he said.

Kent winced. Wallace continued ruthlessly: "And with them you can have back your name. From now on you are just a number—er, let me see—number four-four-three-three-three. Four and three make seven—that's you. Seven years. And a good poker hand to boot." He smiled at his grim joke. Then, with the air of a despot who is bored at jesting, he snapped:

"Breeze him out of here—give him the works!"

"The works" consisted of a regulation prison haircut, in which the clippers played the major role, a bath in which there seemed more disinfectant than water, and an exhausting session with the fingerprint and the Bertillon operators. He then was hustled into the clothing room, where a man looked at him just once and tossed him one after the other a pair of coarse trousers, a suit of flannel underwear, a blouse of the same material as the trousers, a pair of hobnailed and clumsy prison brogans and a cap with an extremely long visor.

Taken to Cell
Put in With Two Noted Criminals

"Shake it up," urged the deputy. "We've got to mug you yet. Leave that cap off."

He was "mugged" front and side views all in one shot. He faced the camera and his profile was reflected in a mirror. A guard placed his number—HIS NUMBER!—on his chest so that everything was taken in that one picture—his face, his identity, his situation, his status, his sorrow and his shame.

Then they jerked him out of the chair and another guard marched him off, down a corridor until they came to a door which bore the inscription "James Adams, Warden." The

SHRINE HOST AT CIRCUS

"L-a-d-i-e-s and g-e-n-t-l-e-m-e-n—we will now p-r-e-s-e-n-t ——!"

Circus day for the young guests of Syria Temple. Bands blare, barkers bark, and 'round the sawdust ring goes the parade in all the shining glitter the big-top and its principals can conjure.

Ten thousand youngsters today milled into the big top of Ringling Brothers - Barnum and Bailey circus at Penn and Fifth avenues, Point Breeze, today to witness the antics of the clowns and one of the most complete menageries in the world.

Once it was necessary for the youngsters to keep their "bibs clean" for a week or more before circus day, so Dad may loosen up when the trains pull into town—but no longer is this true. The youngsters don't even have to carry water for elephants. They went in free, for the treat's on the Shriners.

Did the 10,000 like the show?

SUSPECT TELLS IN HOLDUP QUIZ

Harry Andreini, alias Jennington, "broke" today after a severe all-night grilling by detectives, and told the name of his accomplice in the holdup yesterday of the South Hills Trust Company messenger.

Since Andreini's capture in a cellar of a McKees Rocks building yesterday while attempting to hide the $2,300 loot in an old coat hanging on the wall, he had baffled questioning about his confederate.

Police started a man-hunt through underworld haunts in the hope of capturing him.

J. B. Stauff, of 365 Jefferson drive, Mt. Lebanon, the messenger who was held up, still was unconscious in the Passavant Hospital today.

Stauff collapsed after identifying Andreni yesterday.

Efforts were being made by detectives to link Andreini with the holdups of the East End bank messengers and the paymaster of the American Coat and Apron Supply Company, Chateau street, which netted bandits almost $4,500 last week.

The history department of the University of Pittsburgh will co-operate closely in this part of the program. One of the important phases of the work will be the writing of one or more textbooks suitable for school use.

Of the money for the Historical Society, $18,000 is to go toward the erection and equipment of an addition to its present building on condition that $82,000 is raised from other sources. Of this amount, $40,000 already has been made available by state appropriation.

City to Demand Reports Of All Auto Mishaps

All automobile accidents must be reported to the Department of Public Safety within 24 hours, if Council approves an ordinance that will be discussed late today or tomorrow.

The ordinance was suggested by the Better Traffic Committee and sent to Council by Public Safety Director James M. Clark.

The report, according to the ordinance, would follow that now required by the state. All accidents in which persons are killed or injured or in which the property damage amounts to $50 or more would be reportable. Penalties would be $10 fine or five days in jail or both.

Prof. L. W. McIntyre, member of the committee, who is slated for appointment as traffic engineer to succeed Burton W. Marsh, pointed out last night that the law authorizes local authorities to demand such reports.

A bill increasing the pay of traffic engineer from $5,000 to $7,500, raising the pay of the assistant to $4,000 and creating a new position as planning engineer at $4,000 was approved yesterday by Council, the only dissenter being Robert J. Alderdice.

Tarentum Man Firm in '13' Jinx Belief

Albert Hazlett, of East Tenth avenue, Tarentum, vows that the "13 jinx" is not merely a superstition.

He married Miss Gertrude Mooney, of Philadelphia, on June 13. Then he left Tarentum in an auto on his honeymoon. When he had gone a short distance, he discovered that he had left his camera behind and returned for it. He started out again, but the machine broke down at Saxonburg. He summoned a mechanic and had the car repaired, then resumed his journey. Two miles further on the auto broke down completely.

Hazlett blames it all on the "13 jinx."

BLUE LAWS LOSE IN POLL

Four Townships Yield Heavy Vote Against Act; Ratio Is Maintained

Results to date in the poll of Carnegie, one of the larger boroughs of the county, will be published tomorrow.

The Blue Laws of Pennsylvania are disliked by the rural population of Allegheny County, judging by substantial returns from township voters in the poll of the county by the Sun-Telegraph. In four townships yielding a representative vote in the poll thus far, repeal of the Sunday laws is advocated. The ratio for repeal over enforcement in each is: Baldwin, 4 to 1; Bethel, 3.5 to 1; East Deer, 5 to 1; Elizabeth, 2.3 to 1. The totals to date are:

Township	Enforcement.	Modification.	Repeal
Baldwin	24	9	98
Bethel	29	11	99
East Deer ...	16	8	86
Elizabeth	57	19	129

The division of the aggregate vote between men and women is: For enforcement, 79 men and 47 women; for modification, 24 men and 13 women; for repeal, 302 men and 110 women.

The present total of ballots in the poll from the four townships, 585, is 23 per cent of the 2,612 votes cast in these townships at the recent primary election.

The latest totals in the poll throughout the county are:

	Men	Women	Total
Blue Laws .	3,838	3,245	7,083
Modification	2,170	1,345	3,515
For repeal .	24,156	11,574	35,730

The total ballots in the poll to date, 46,328, is made up of these proportions: 77 per cent for repeal; 15 per cent for enforcement; 8 per cent for modification. The ratio for repeal over enforcement is more than 5 to 1.

The boroughs of Pitcairn and Port Vue are embraced in the poll with the latest distribution of ballots.

LIBERTY BRIDGE RAMP PROVIDED

Motorists coming from the East End would be able to swing from the Boulevard of the Allies down a ramp connecting with the approach to the Liberty Bridge, under an ordinance that appeared in Council yesterday.

The ordinance provides for the improvement of Horace street and for a ramp by which inbound traffic can turn from the boulevard to the bridge approach. Left turns to the bridge from the boulevard are now prohibited.

The physical work, according to estimates of the Department of Public Works, will cost $130,000, with $38,000 more for property damages.

Another ordinance provided for the widening of Lebanon road, Thirty-first Ward, a project in which the state will share the cost. The state is planning the widening of the highway to 56 feet from the new municipal airport to the city line.

The Better Traffic Committee yesterday sent a communication urging the widening of Woodruff avenue to 80 feet and the improvement of Independent street, both part of the continuation of Saw Mill Run boulevard.

2-MILLION PLAN MAY BE PUT TO VOTERS

Ordinance Proposes New Pumping Unit to Assure Supply to Squirrel Hill

Council is considering a prosposal to permit the voters to pass on a $2,000,000 bond issue for improvement of the city's water system.

Improvement of the supply to the Squirrel Hill section is the chief consideration contained in the proposal, made by the Department of Public Works.

For immediate consideration Council has an ordinance appropriating $35,000 for a new pumping unit at the Herron Hill Station and a booster station on Beacon street.

SQUIRREL HILL SHORTAGE

A breakdown in one of the Herron Hill pumps, coming simultaneously with the first hot spell of the year, caused a shortage of water in the Squirrel Hill district.

The department recommended, first, that $60,000 be spent to improve the Squirrel Hill supply, the money to come from available funds, and that in September a councilmanic bond issue for $100,000 be floated to return the $60,000 and to provide for additional pipe lines.

RESERVOIR FUND URGED

Then the department recommended a peoples' bond issue of $2,034,000. This would be used for a new reservoir and pumping station in the Lincoln avenue district and the re-equipment of the Herron Hill station, to cost $1,322,000; pipe lines on the new South Tenth street bridge, $45,000; improvements to the Ross, Mission and Howard pumping stations, $102,000; a new rising main from Brilliant pumping station to No. 2 reservoir, Highland Park, $200,000, and a new pipe line along Smallman street to the downtown district, $220,000.

The Camera Question Box

Today's Question: A Chicago priest accused the moving picture of distorting and misrepresenting American life, creating hostility in foreign nations and having the wrong effect on international relations. Do you agree?

Miss Justice

MISS DOROTHY JUSTICE, Pittsburgh, saleswoman: No. I don't agree. People who say thinks like that are afraid to face the truth and admit that American life is anything like what it really is.

Andrew Wagner

Miss Clasky

MISS JEAN CLASKY, Squirrel Hill, musician: Foreigners don't lead the same lives as Americans and any bad effect the movies may have on foreign relations is surely due to a misinterpretation of the motives in back of the picture.

Miss Grodstein

MISS BLANCHE GRODSTEIN, Squirrel Hill, bookkeeper: A lot of the movies don't even pretend to portray life as it really is. They have to make pictures to please the movie-going crowd and what the crowd wants isn't always real life.

Miss Wassel

MISS JEAN WASSEL, East End, saleswoman: No, I don't think the person who criticized the moving picture in such an unfavorable way had the right idea at all. Many things must be taken into consideration when judging movies and you must admit that American life is at times rather accurately shown, whether we like to admit it then or not.

E. B. Quinn, Jr.

E. B. QUINN, Jr., Ingram, clerk: I don't agree with the priest. I think the wrong sides of life are not emphasized, but that the right ideas are shown and the portrayal is a good one.

CLARK TRIBUTE PLANNED HERE

Pittsburgh has a peculiar interest in the bill introduced by Senator James E. Watson of Indiana appropriating $1,750,000 for the George Rogers Clark Sesqui-Centennial Commission, according to William H. Stevenson, president of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania. In Clark's expedition against Kaskaskia and Vincennes he outfitted his troops at Pittsburgh and reported the progress of his campaign to the commandant of Ft. Pitt.

It is considered probable that a celebration of Clark's victories in the northwest will be held in Pittsburgh in connection with the sesqui-centennial. This observance of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the close of Clark's war in the Northwest, Mr. Stevenson said, would be independent of any movement toward erecting a statue in his memory here.

A bill was introduced by Senator David A. Reed appropriating $25,000 for a monument at the Point to Clark and other pioneers. The bill is still pending in Congress.

Clark, a native of Virginia, in early manhood was a surveyor in Kentucky and Ohio. He participated in the Indian wars and during the Revolution was commissioned by Gov. Patrick Henry of Virginia to lead an attack on the British garrisons beyond the Ohio.

Flinchum was driving the automobile, and when he was shot it left the road and crashed into a tree, injuring Dale and Street.

Club Board Lunch Riot Of Fun

The dignity of that august body, the board of the Congress of Clubs, tottered—and fell yesterday when the annual board luncheon was held at the clubhouse. To tell the whole truth of what went on at that hilarious affair would be to imperil said dignity forever. Suffice to say there were songs and duets (who wrote the words?), a sermon, a dance, an address (in which the Mayflower and wild animals somehow all got mixed up together) to the "stay-ins" and the "outers," accounts of reputed meetings and telephone conversations, impersonations and pretty much what have you.

Corsages of rosebuds were presented to the outgoing members of the board and the president, Mrs. R. W. Johnston, by Mrs. George J. Campbell to the accompaniment of witty wisecracks and for her very rhetorical and heavily oratorical address. Mrs. T. M. Stahlman was presented with a corsage of pineapple tops ribboned. Mrs. W. M. Jardies' black-face impersonation in which she sought the rights for a beauty parlor in the clubhouse was another high light, but one of the very funniest incidents was Mrs. W. G. A. Miller's contribution of a game of tubes in which each staid director went hunting for her partner in song. It didn't seem to make any difference that Yankee Doodle and America were construed to be one and the same.

There were some really lovely decorations of red roses, baby's breath feverfue with just an odd touch from a zinnia or two, and green tapers tied with sprigs of tiny blossoms. At the table were Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. F. H. Burdick, Mrs. T. M. Stahlman, Mrs. Charles S. Miller, Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. James C. Mace, she was the instigator of the whole affair; Mrs. Milton C. Reno, Mrs. J. W. Briggs, Mrs. William H. Frances, Mrs. H. T. Frauenheim, Miss Miriam Schonfield, Mrs. Paul Hamilton, Mrs. Justice, Mrs. J. H. Lesley, Mrs. C. J. Priessler and Mrs. J. C. Schreiner.

FINE WOOLENS ENDORSED FOR RESTAURANT WEAR

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 17.—Wool winds its way through the mode into the ward-robes of the best dressed women here. Paris is once more crowded and sparkling with animation and every fashionable rendezvous and restaurant discloses ever so many smart women dressed not in chiffons or silk crepes, but in dresses of fine woolens, smartly tailored and impeccably detailed. Dresses and coats on this order seem to be the unanimous choice this season of both young and mature women who find delight in simple well-cut clothes built on trig lines and to insure good looking comfort. Homespuns, wool crepes, wool voiles, and light weight tweeds are first favorites for material honors this season and most of these fabrics are hold-overs from last Autumn. Just now the frock of light weight woolen without a coat, but worn with a fur scarf is exceedingly well liked, but as there is such a wide variety of fabrics and styles there is little danger of uniformity of this type of outht.

TO GIVE THE readers of this page an adequate idea of just what is what in Paris we present two sketches of frocks worn by two very well turned-out women who were lunching chez Victor. The first drawing is of a woolen voile dress in dark brown with a light plaided line in beige and a beige belt stitched in dark brown. The circular flounce on the bodice gives the effect of a short bolero. It is somewhat wider at the front. A circular peplum is placed rather low on the skirt and below it the skirt flares in a circular movement. The hat worn with this beautifully tailored frock was of biege milanese straw with insets and a large bow of dark brown taffeta.

A YOUNG AMERICAN woman was the wearer of the very smart coat made of gray and black homespun. The half belt, starting at each under-arm is of gray suede as is the little sports hat and the gloves with very wide cuffs drawn over the sleeve. The narrow tie-scarf of self-fabric is a very important note on tailored coats just now. Under the coat was worn a tailored gray crepe with pique collar and cuffs.

RUSS COAL HELD PERIL TO STATE

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP.)—Soviet Russia was pictured as an economic menace to Pennsylvania coal operators today by Representative Brumm (Rep.), in urging the House Ways and Means Committee to approve his bill to prohibit the importation of anthracite coal mined by convict or conscript labor.

Asserting that enough foreign coal was pouring into Pennsylvania to "paralyze" the state in two years, Brumm said anthracite coal from Siberia had at one time been sold in Philadelphia for $5 a ton.

He said the state's operators could not produce it for less than $10, and added 180,000 tons of the Siberian coal had been imported last year.

Representative Garner, the Democratic leader, objected to approval of Brumm's measure, saying if the principle of his bill was desirable it should not be limited to coal alone.

Royal Red Tape Prevents Act Of Chivalry

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 17.—(AP.)—Royal red tape prevented his grace, James Brown, Scottish coal miner whom the Labor government made Lord High Commissioner of the Church of Scotland, from doing an act of kindness during the church sessions here.

Looking over the assembled guests from his seat on the throne, he saw an elderly woman without a seat. Instantly he rose and was going to find a seat for her when an official whispered to him:

"Send an order. Remember you are representing the King and ca. not leave the throne."

Her long taffy-colored hair was combed sleekly back and bound into a French twist. Her lips were the usual startling and unconvincing red.

To Tom she was more astonishingly ... than ever, reminding him of the fruitless and futuristic modeling models he had ... in the large shops down-town.

Cecile sank ... upon the divan beside him.

"You have made me so curious with your ... about Mr. Underhill," she smiled. "Please do believe my ... curiosity."

Smiles at Tom

Tom did not return her flashing smile. "I regret that I had to use his name. But it was necessary that I see you."

She made large eyes at him. "But, Mr. Corbett, it is a pleasure!"

Tom took up the burden, very red in the face. "No, this is not going to be a pleasure for either one of us," he said desperately. "And we'll make it easier for ourselves if we drop all pretense of friendliness and act naturally. I must be frank. Brutally frank. I am going to speak of very personal matters and of course you are not going to like it.

Cecile's eyes had narrowed as he spoke and they were like the watchful, half-closed eyes of a cat.

"Well?"

"Well, you know that I am an old friend of Ken. Ever since we went to college we've been thick."

"Not so thick lately, I believe."

"No." Tom's eyes narrowed now. "Let us understand each other. But notwithstanding, I am here on Ken's behalf now. I am asking that you give him a divorce."

Cecile's eyes glinted. "A most peculiar request for a man to make, even for such a dead friend..."

"Perhaps. But then you see fate — or chance, rather — has placed some very peculiar weapons in my hands."

Murder in Her Eyes

"Such as—"

"Did you have a pleasant trip when you went South last time?" Tom was sweating profusely. The role of the subtle villain was not in his line, but he held himself doggedly to it.

The blood drained away from the woman's face until her lips stood out startlingly from the background. "Why do you ask that?"

"Because Mr. Underhill has a very intelligent Chinese servant named Lee whom I imagine he is shortly going to discharge."

Seeks Way Out

"You can't bully me into your schemes." Cecile was beginning recklessly when she became cautious. She was suddenly badly frightened.

Tom ... someone has been lying about the ... She stopped at the sight of his hardening face. She sank down again on the divan and covered her face with her long white hands. Her muffled voice sounded: "Oh, this is ghastly! My God..."

Her quick mind was darting back and forth like a shuttle as she searched for a way out. She dropped her hands. Spoke with feverish intensity.

"I know why you're doing this! It isn't for Ken. It's for her! For that girl! Oh, what a fool you are! Can't you see if I divorce Ken it will make it possible for him to marry her? That means you've really lost her. Let a few months go by. They'll get tired of each other. She'll be glad enough to come to you on your own terms."

Tom was looking at her just as he might have regarded some strange and repulsive bug. "Lord, you are rotten!" His voice was thick.

She flushed. "And you are a blind fool! You and Ken — what you can see in that common shop girl——"

Victorious

Tom rose. He knew the victory was won and he was suddenly very tired.

"It really isn't necessary that you see," he replied. "I am to understand then that you will see your attorney right away and file suit for divorce. desertion will do. Certainly you will not name another woman."

"I shouldn't delay if I were you. And in return I will develop a very poor memory about your trips. I wouldn't worry about that Chinese boy. If I were you, unless I take a hand. But you might tell the editor of The Spy that I am only waiting the chance to get him for libel at the first opportunity and that when I get that chance I'll go through hell and high water to see that he's thrown in jail. I have an idea that the days of The Spy are numbered. And I guess that's all."

He took his hat and walked from the room without another glance at the woman watching him venomously from the divan.

A relief to be out in the sunshine and fresh air. He threw back his shoulders. He drew deep breaths as he plunged down the hills.

I WONDER WHAT HE THOUGHT WHEN HE READ THAT I'D MARRIED A MILLIONAIRE
IT WOULDN'T MEAN A THING TO HIM IF YOU MARRIED THE PRINCE OF WALES!
FUNNY I COULD WIN THIS RICH GIRL SO EASILY, AND ALL MY OLD GIRL FRIENDS WAS THE RUN-AROUND FAY-KING

By FAY KING

SOMETIMES as fascinating as certain persons are to those of the opposite sex, they fail to attract the one person who interests them most.

The more successful they are with others the more despairing seems this defeat.

Sometimes they marry the most famous or richest of their admirers in order to impress the one they could not win.

The one who couldn't see them with a field glass is probably not impressed at all.

We never envy others what we do not want ourselves.

Therefore, spite marriage or suicide is the worst way in the world to foolishly sacrifice one's self hoping to cause a ripple of regret in the lives of those who do not care.

Forget them.

You'll fall in love again.

It's only that I ... to remembering what ... his mother used to do ... she wasn't well ... you known ... or she wouldn't ... and I just couldn't stand it to think Roderick ...

"William, don't!" I implored. "Of course your mother wasn't herself; she was really ill, and you must never think again of those things unless ... but the world back and established a fervent injunction: 'Just remember always the lovely things about her.'"

"Oh, I do," he said hastily, but there was that in his voice which made me realize that the poor lad had few such memories to cherish and the next second he added quietly:

"What did you mean by 'unless' Aunt Madge?"

"Only this," I said, nerving myself for the explanation. "Some day you or Henry or Roderick or Mary may find out that you do not mind seeing animals or even insects suffer. Then you must watch yourselves very carefully for fear that some time when you are angry you make them suffer just because you are too wrathful to care. It might help to remember what you went through when you were helpless."

"I see and I'll remember," he said. "And you go right ahead and give Roderick a licking if ... he needs one for ... for what he did first in ... [illegible]

Then all at once we heard them yelling at each other and then they were squaring off at each other as if they were Tunney and Dempsey. But Roderick hit Junior first. I know that ... and Junior got a twenty back before your father could grab 'em. Then you came in."

Thank you for being so frank with me, William," I said, holding out my hand, which he gripped awkwardly. "And I'm sure you will have a good time during the holidays. Be sure to come to me if there is anything you want, or if you're puzzled about anything."

"That's mighty nice of you, Aunt Madge," he said. "And you let me know if Henry and Roderick give you any trouble. I can straighten 'em out for you."

"Thank you so much, William," I said. "That will make things much easier for me. And now we must go back to the living room."

"Yes. I'll bet they've got a circus on their hands," he said, and I saw that with the blessed buoyancy of youth he already had put aside his bitter memories.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

But Ladies Must Love

There are more confirmed bachelors in the world every day, but where every girl is waiting for is that tale bring a man who will make a confirmed husband.

The average man marries a quiet, restful little woman with whom he can relax—and then finds life so monotonous that he has to look around for a sparkling peppy woman to help him bear it.

After her third marriage all a woman's friends lose faith in her passionate protestations that it is positively her "last appearance" at the altar.

In a woman, a little wisdom is more useful than a lot of learning, and—as far as most men are concerned—a brilliant mind is an asset only in proportion to her ability to conceal it.

Why is it that the generous, impulsive soul, who "would lend you a thousand dollars in a minute if he had it," so seldom seems to have more than 30 cents in his pocket?

* * *

Nothing so disheartens and disgusts a modern girl as to be considered "utterly safe" to lend her friends to and park husbands with.

When he finds that it takes a little skill, a little time and a lot of artful lying to kiss a girl these days, a man is not chagrined; he is simply amazed—and almost grateful.

If I were innocent (and homely), I'd prefer to be tried by a jury of women—because, then, I'd get justice. But if I were guilty (and pretty), I'd beg for a jury of men—because, then, I'd get mercy. And plenty of it!

After all, it takes only one mosquito in the room and one siren in her husband's life, to wreck a woman's beauty sleep.

THE BIG HOUSE

By JACK LAIT

guard knocked softly and opened the door almost simultaneously, and peeped in. He drew Kent inside with him. Kent saw here at a glance a modernly equipped office—an office which might have been one of a hundred thousand in the city he had left. But an office with a distinctly original outlook. For through the great, plate-glass window at the other side could be seen the high-walled prison yard now almost deserted, as it was after lock-up time, and the purple shadows of twilight played garishly beneath the window. A few trusties moved about below.

As Kent and the guard stood in the doorway the warden finished his conversation over one of the three telephones on his desk. Kent studied his sternly chiseled, yet not unkindly profile. His eyes were steely gray. His hair was beginning to turn at the temples. A woman, a motherly sort, with her coat and hat on, stood at his elbow.

"I'm sorry, Kate," said the warden, leaning back and smiling at the woman, "I won't be able to make it home before eleven. Tell Aunt Emmy to stay all night. Now run along—Goodby dear."

The warden arose and kissed his wife and walked with her to the opposite door—the door to the outside! As the woman left and the door closed Kent felt the more keenly his own isolation. The warden, still not glancing at the guard and the prisoner, took his seat at his desk. The guard advanced and placed a file of papers before his superior.

Warden Adams glanced at them with a practised eye and then looked up, a wistful smile on his face.

"I hate to see a young fellow like you in here for manslaughter," he began.

"It was an accident, sir," hoarsely answered Kent, slightly raising his bowed head. He burned to explain.

"I remember your case. I read it in the newspapers. You killed two people in an automobile accident—"

"Yes, an accident—"

"My boy, it may be that you have been picked out as an example, but you must take the rap. You must spend seven years of your life here."

"But it was New Year's Eve—I had been drinking," insisted Kent.

"Your sentence can be reduced by good behavior and careful observance of the prison rules," continued the warden. "You are not, in the common sense of the word, criminal. They will ride you and call you a 'foreigner.' You will not be thrown among criminals, among men with whom you would not ordinarily associate on the outside. I must warn you against the influences you will encounter here." He paused, and then added: "In fact, against the influences you would encounter in any prison."

"Yes, sir. Thanks, sir."

"And also remember this—prisons don't give a fellow a yellow streak. But if he has one—they bring it out. That is all."

The warden smiled sadly and turned to the guard.

"Have you a cell assignment for this man?" he asked.

"Yes, sir. Number 329 in Section B."

The warden nodded. The guard beckoned to Kent to follow him. When the door closed, Pop Riker, a trusty, who had been standing in the background, came forward and said to the warden:

"Do you realize who are you putting that boy with?"

"No ... who?"

"Morgan, the slickest crook we ever played house with here ... and Machine Gun Butch."

"Yes? Hum ..."

The warden arose and began to pace the floor. Then he wheeled on the trusty and said:

"Pop, don't you get chicken-hearted. It can't be helped. At the last Governor's Council I warned them that we had 3,000 men here—and had cells for only 1,800. They want to throw every crook into prison in this state, but they don't care what provision is made for him. What can we do? But some day we'll pay for their penny-pinching. Mark my word!"

The warden walked to the window and he looked out into the prison yard. He was still standing there when Kent, his slight figure bent beneath his bundle of blankets and mattress, crossed the yard followed by the guard. The warden shook his head and sighed and turned back to his desk. He had a son, in college, just this other boy's age and build.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, June 18

The planetary configurations for this day point to a fairly active state of affairs, with some desirable change, journey or removal. The energies will be quickened to constructive work, with courage and resourcefulness for new ventures, which may bear fruit in a manner not entirely expected. A great deal depends on the original effort and initiative, as to ultimate outcomes.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to make moves of importance during the year, with probable change of environment or travel of an unexpected nature. This in connection with new ventures or in enterprises suddenly presented. The energies and faculties will be keen and resourceful to meet all such emergencies, but it would be wise not to permit pleasure or personal problems to be a disturbing factor to success.

A child born on this day may be bold, adventurous, resourceful and original, and should succeed by its own initiative and skill.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

To Work or Not to Work— Still the Young Wife's Absorbing Question.

Remember Laurence?

Laurence was the big boy who couldn't pull down more than 25 per, and expected the family to get along nicely on that. And Eve tried her gallant best to make a home for herself and the two babies in the all-less city room.

As long as she herself was the only one to suffer she stood it bravely. Even went without a doctor when the second babe was born. But when her precious youngster began to droop in the sunless attic—when she looked into the long years ahead and saw only poverty for them, no chances, no education then Eve rebelled and demanded her right to take a job too, so that through their combined efforts they might live in decent surroundings.

Whereat, Laurence's injured pride went right up in smoke!

"I didn't marry you to work for me! I'll do the supporting of this family"—complacently obvious of the fact that the family wasn't being supported, and that Eve was working herself and her babies into an early grave.

So little, weary, discouraged Eve sat down and told us the story. And we, after a few snooty remarks concerning friend Laurence, told her to hop to it and get that job.

Now comes Sybil with her story of how she tackled the same grim problem.

"Dear Sally—

"I've been reading the story of Laurence and Eve, and I want to tell you my experience. I know the problem of 'to work or not to work' after a girl gets married is a puzzling one. But I think you are right when you tell Eve to get that job.

NEEDS TALKING TO

"Needless to say, my opinion of Laurence is that he is a very stubborn, selfish and mistaken young man. Instead of making it easier for his wife, he has made it a great deal harder, and while I don't advocate a wife going deliberately against her husband, I think that if I were Eve, I would certainly rebel. That young man needs to have a good talking to ... and he needs to do a little real thinking.

"Going back to my own case, when we were first married my husband was very much opposed to my working. He felt that his salary was sufficient to support two people. However, I was very anxious indeed to have my own home, and at least not to have to live in the little cubbyhole of a furnished apartment that so many couples have. I knew that eventually we would need our own furniture, and of course would want babies, and that if I didn't work we would have a hard struggle.

"So I finally convinced my husband, and kept my very good secretarial job which was paying me $32.50 a week. I worked a year and a half and during that time we paid for a houseful of furniture and have a half interest in the five-room house we are living in. Besides that, we have a little car ... and last, but not least, we have a nice little sum of money put away ... not a lot but enough to tide us over a rainy day.

"Now I'm expecting my baby, and we look forward to that event with deep happiness, knowing that there will be no bills unpaid ... that we have enough to bring the baby into the world with the best possible care. And both my husband and I are very thankful indeed that I worked during the time I did.

FREE OF WORRY

"Because I did, we're free of worry, our bills will be paid, which will be a great benefit to the people we owe them to, as well as to ourselves ... and that's something! Prosperity depends on people being able to pay for what they need.

"If it should become necessary again, I wouldn't hesitate to go back to work again, and I know that my husband has judgment enough not to make things hard for me by raising a lot of silly objections.

"I think I'm a lot better off than if I were married to a man who was willing to see me worry and drudge my life away just to save some sentimental notion of his about 'keeping me in the home.'

"I say to Eve, 'go ahead and get that job!' Don't waste your life pinching and worrying and slaving in that dark, dreary apartment! Get that little house and give those babies of yours the health and sunshine they need.' "SYBIL."

That was Sybil's solution—and a mighty fine one it will seem to many. But others will say that Sybil was all wrong! They'll vow that the American home is going to the dogs because young wives aren't content to exist on their husband's salaries, but insist on working. They'll say that mothers should stay at home with their children, even though by so doing the whole family must exist on half rations.

Well—which is your side?

Should young wives and mothers work to raise the standard of the home?

Or should the Eves and the Sybils be content to take whatever the husbands can provide even though it means sickness, poverty and utter discouragement?

That isn't just a make-believe tangle. It's a very real problem that thousands of women are facing today. How would you solve it if you were a devoted, ambitious young wife and mother?

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Problem in Seating Guests at Table

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: ...

I, too, have a problem to present to you. It is this:

I am entertaining the members of a club to which I belong. There are four "pledges" to the society. I am at a loss as to whether the place of honor should be given to the president or to the new members. If the "pledges" are given the preference, how should the seating be arranged?

Your work is indeed excellent and helpful as many of my friends can testify. K.

Why wouldn't it be a charming arrangement of the seating for this festive and important occasion to have you, as the hostess, have two of the pledged members sit next to you, and have the other two members sit next to the president, at the other end of the table? This would make the president a co-hostess, in a sense, and you both would show honor to the members-to-be.

Thank you for your kind tribute!

The Frock for the High School Banquet

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Would you please tell me what is correct to wear to a high school banquet? Would a green dress with puff sleeves and black shoes be all right?

2. What color stockings should I wear? READER.

1. The green dress with puff sleeves would, I think, be very charming. But why not change the black shoes for either green satin shoes to match the green of your frock, or wear blonde satin slippers?

2. Flesh color.

The Costume for the Afternoon Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I wish you would be kind enough to let me know whether it would be proper for me to wear a white chiffon evening gown to an afternoon wedding. It is going to be a very large affair. F.

It would not be correct for you to wear an evening gown to an afternoon wedding. You should wear an afternoon gown or three-piece costume with a "dressy" hat.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Toxic Poisoning Will Cause Skin Eruption

Hives is a most trying condition. There is an eruption most intense itching and burning and pricking sensation. All the symptoms are made worse by scratching.

DR. COPELAND

The trouble may last for only a few hours, or it may continue for days. It may disappear only to come back again. In some instances it becomes chronic, lasting for months.

Hives may occur at any time of life. It is most common in childhood when there is a weakened condition of the system or undernourishment.

There is a close sympathetic relation between the skin and the digestive tract. When the stomach or intestines are considerably disturbed, the fact may show itself in the skin, often in the form of hives.

We classify many skin diseases as among the "toxic" eruptions. It is likely that poisons in the system are the causes for such disturbances.

There are two kinds of hives, the more common being what the doctors call "urticaria," or nettle-rash. In this case there are swellings of the skin and terrible itching.

Another variety is "giant hives," or "anglo-neurotic oedema." In this form there is but one or a few very large and hard swellings.

It is probable that the chief cause of hives is some kind of food poisoning. Decomposing materials, which may remain in the digestive tract for days, do infinite harm. They form toxins or poisons which are carried to all parts of the body by the blood stream.

One person may eat one kind of food that acts as a poison in the system, while 99 other persons can eat it without being affected by it in the least. This is a peculiarity of the human family.

Certain persons are made ill by shell-fish, or strawberries. Others cannot eat eggs, pork, canned meat, salted fish, mushrooms or pickles without being made ill.

It is well, if you suffer from hives, to do some experimenting. Omit from the diet one food at a time. Continue this until, one after another, all the foods you usually take are eliminated. In this way you can find the offending food.

Toxic poisons are set up in the body by waste materials in the intestines. The kidneys, abscessed teeth and tonsils often are accompanied by hives.

WOMAN'S HAT DEATH PUZZLE

A woman's black hat and a string of pearl beads found in the automobile in which the body of Walter R. Ewing, 31, a civil engineer of 7247 Kedron street, was found dead with a bullet wound in the heart last night added a touch of mystery to a case which homicide detectives had called suicide due to ill health. The car with the dead body was parked in Cordas way, in the rear of the West Penn Hospital.

The theory was advanced today that Ewing may have been accompanied on his last ride by a woman who disappeared either just before or just after the tragedy.

Police who took Ewing to the hospital reported they found a revolver in his hand and a box of cartridges in his pocket. Ewing last was seen alive on Sunday when he left in his car for Johnstown.

DENY SOS SENT IN SEA CRASH

BOSTON, June 17.—(AP.)—The testimony of coast guard officers established the fact that no SOS message was received from the steamship Fairfax on the night it rammed the tanker Pinthis causing a loss of 47 lives. It was also brought out that it was not until nearly 10 hours later the coast guard cutter Tampa, 23 miles from the scene of disaster, was told the Pinthis had gone down with all hands.

The testimony was considered by officials among the most important thus far developed at the government's inquiry into the collision, June 10 between the Boston-to-Norfolk passenger liner and the Chelsea-bound oil carrier.

Another statement was that for 20 minutes after the accident the Fairfax was in communication with two other ships while her operator was supposedly under orders to transmit an SOS call.

The wounded man is Ralph D'Amico, 34, who is said to be the owner of the Roxy Club, where the shooting occurred.

Dinato, known as a "small time" bootlegger entered the club shortly before last midnight and accused D'Amico of causing police to interfere with him. D'Amico witnesses said, ignored him, and the shooting followed.

SURGEONS FACE CANCER TESTS

BALTIMORE, June 16.—(AP.)—Fifty American cancer specialists each were given five minutes to make a life and death diagnosis in a unique medical class at Johns Hopkins today. They were studying a method of cancer diagnosis whereby it is hoped to save more lives in operations. Each had a microscope and under it a small, frozen section from a human growth that might, or might not be cancer. The samples were real, and the "histories" of the human sufferers real.

No lives were at stake today because the samples were from the Johns Hopkins preserved collections.

Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, who conducted the class, read a telegram from Dr. William J. Mayo endorsing the quick diagnosis, stating that it should be done "in two or three minutes," is of great benefit and is practised at the Mayo clinic.

The cancer meetings are to last three days. Dr. Bloodgood said they were made possible by the aid of Francis P. Garvan, president of the Chemical Foundation; Col. Ira Copley, the Illinois publisher; the American College of Surgeons, through its assistant director, Dr. Crowell, and a few personal frie

FRENCH TO PITCH TODAY

SPORT COMMENT
by JAMES J. LONG

Room for New Pirates • Wise Hockey Change.
Petty Not Going Alone No Lucky-Ball Action.
Indians Youthful Club One Boxer Who Saves.

BUCS SOON TO DROP ANOTHER PITCHER

THOUGH THE RELEASE of Jess Petty to Newark following the shipping of Charley Hargreaves to Baltimore put the Pittsburgh club one below the limit of 25 players to which each major league team is restricted by baseball law, it is improbable that the Pirate management will stop there. Not only is there nothing to be gained by carrying 6 players who cannot help the team, but such a course would be against the best interests of the club as the various athletes take up space on the roster that might be utilized to advantage by acquiring new members that are to be of far greater service even if only minor leaguers.

Jess Petty

It was for the purpose of making room for some other pastimer who may be obtained later that Petty was dropped. In line with the same policy, as foretold in the Sun Telegraph last Saturday, it is probable that another Pirate will be disposed of at an early date. The Buccaneer chiefs are said to be convinced that a second pitcher is not going to be of any value to the club and it is understood that arrangements are being made to send him elsewhere.

BOTH PETTY AND the other hurler who is to follow him out of the Circus camp would have been discarded some time ago but for the fact that the pitching department was short-handed owing to the incapacitation of Ivin Brame, Blair Thurlow and Heinie Meine. But veteran it was considered to carry them, their retention now with the limit in force would prevent the taking on of any new material.

That puts a different complexion on the situation so in all probability not much more time will be wasted with the second flinger than was wasted with Petty when the hour for the limit enforcement drew near. There will be no loss whether they are replaced or not. Petty won only one game this year and Swetonic saved that for him. The extent of the veteran left hander ineffectiveness may be judged from the fact that in 41 innings pitched he allowed 67 hits and 39 earned runs, an average of almost 15 hits and nine earned runs per nine innings.

THE MOST ENCOURAGING Pirate news of the season to date is the announcement that Lloyd Waner discharged from the Union Memorial Hospital of Baltimore will return home with the Bucs tomorrow and may be able to play in about two weeks.

The little star has not only regained all the weight he lost but is heavier than ever before, and his general condition is so greatly improved as to offer the hope that it won't take him a long while to swing into something close to his normal stride.

Lloyd Waner

LIKE THE WATER that isn't missed until the well runs dry, the value of the younger Waner never was fully realized until he was absent from the lineup. No club ever was hit harder by the loss of a single player than the Bucs were hit in being deprived of the services of the little center fielder for more than two months. His absence has been the principal cause of the spring slide, and the club's chances of making a creditable finish depend mainly upon how soon he can return to his post and how quickly he can rise to his playing peak. His defensive ability alone would have saved many games that have been lost in the middle garden, to say nothing of his worth on the offensive, or the effect that his absence has had in lessening the confidence of the other players, particularly the pitchers.

TODAY'S GAME IN Philadelphia winds up what has been a sorry old trip for the battered Buccaneers. The latest wallop administered by the Phillies in drubbing Remy Kremer and Ervin Brame yesterday was the eighth defeat suffered on the disastrous cruise against only four games won. Up to today the Enamen had the same record for every stop—two lost out of three.

If the Rovers are to escape being pushed even nearer to the bottom they'll have to take a big brace during the long home stay that begins tomorrow. Nineteen straight games are scheduled at Forbes Field—four with the Giants, three with the Dodgers, five with the Phillies, four with the Braves, and three with the Cubs, a tough program on any grounds.

ROGER PECKINPAUGH, manager of the Cleveland Indians has been making his sensational drive in the American League pennant race in which only a game and a half separates the first and fourth teams, with one of the youngest clubs that ever loomed as pennant contender in the majors.

The only real veteran is Joe Sewell, 31. His brother Luke is 29, Porter 29, Averill 27, Morgan 25, Land 25, Hodapp 24 and Seeds 22. Of the pitchers, Brown is 25, Hudlin 24, Ferrell 22 and Harder 20.

Roger Peckinpaugh

ACCORDING TO PECKINPAUGH, the youth of the team is one of the chief reasons for its success, as most of the players are at an age when they "just think they can't be licked." Even a long series of mishaps failed to shake their confidence. The Indians have had their share of the season's ill luck in that respect. Averill was out three weeks and Myatt one week with ankle injuries. Fonseca lost two weeks on account of a dislocated shoulder, and then was put on the shelf for two months with a broken arm. A pair of injured knees laid Falk low, and a sprained back incapacitated Jamieson to such an extent that he is still unable to throw a ball more than 50 feet. A bean ball sent Porter to a hospital for one week and kept him out of action for three weeks more. Hodapp also suffered a beaning and in addition was playing for two weeks under the handicap of an injured ankle. And now Luke Sewell is out for three weeks with a broken finger. So it can't be said that Cleveland's lofty position in the standing is due to a run of luck.

NO OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT of the proceedings has yet been made, but it is reported that the magnates of the National Hockey League have held a quiet little meeting and agreed upon some rule changes that promise to work out to the benefit of the ice sport.

One alteration in particular that will meet with the approval of all fans puts an end to the ridiculous practice of loaning players. It has been customary for one club to go to the aid of another with playing material in an emergency, just as if the Phils were to loan Fresco Thompson to the Cubs while Rogers Hornsby is out. There'll be no more of that absurd stuff, and it's a step that will help the game. Another change will make it possible for clubs to send players to their minor league farms without the formality of asking waivers.

THOUGH SOME OF the National League club owners had explained beforehand that they were tied up by a contract with the manufacturers and could not make any change in the lively ball on that account, they said after yesterday's meeting that their reason for doing nothing about the rabbit pill was that it appeared to be popular, figures showing this year's attendance to be in excess of the 1929 mark. They're changing their tune at any rate. In previous seasons they came out regularly with the assertion that no change had been made in the ball in 15 or 20 years. Now they're at least admitting that it's lively.

Probably they'll go a step farther eventually and confess that they're all wrong in believing that the increased attendance was due to popularity of the ball. Then they may work in a less lively ball

DIEGEL, JONES, TWO SMITHS SAFELY 'IN'

By F. A. MAY
International News Service.

HOYLAKE, Eng., June 17.—Buddy Noire, Leo Diegel, George Von Elm, MacDonald Smith and Horton Smith, aces of America's shooting gang, have finished the last half of the qualifying test in fine style today and passed safely into the championship field in the British open championship.

Diegel is a tie for second place yesterday when he carried a 70 added a 74 today to finish with a 36-hole total of 144, three strokes behind Aubrey Compston, the British pro who appeared to have individual honors sewed up.

Jones, after going to the turn in a poor 40, pleaded on the home nine and annexed a 71 for a 36-hole score of 150.

MAC SMITH HAS 71

MacDonald Smith, who had to be satisfied with a 71 yesterday, was on today coming in with a 71 and a 148 total that placed him among the qualifying leaders.

Horton Smith, the first of the Americans to complete the 36-hole test, added a 76 to his 75 of yesterday for a total of 151.

Von Elm, scored 76 in the second round for a total of 147, placing him in a tie with Cyril Tolley, British amateur star, for the lead among the amateurs.

Bobby played surprising golf for Jones, for the conditions of play favored good golf and the gallery expected to see him run off a string of birdies. The spectators were amazed to see him take 5 and a 6.

JONES TROUBLED

Jones was short with an approach putt at the eighth and took two from 20 feet for a 6. At this hole spectators walked across the edge of the green and Bobby about to putt, shouted:

"Please do not walk across the green."

Qualifying round scores follow:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY. THE FIG IS NOT A FRUIT—The fig is not a fruit, but the fleshy receptacle containing the flowers. The so-called seeds in a ripe fig are the real fruits. Each of the latter contains a single true seed. Due to this peculiar structure the process of fig pollination cannot be accomplished by ordinary means. A peculiar insect, the blastaphaga, has to be imported for the purpose. TORTOISE SHELL DOES NOT COME FROM TORTOISE—Tortoise shell does not come from the tortoise, which is a creature of terrestrial habits, but it is obtained from the scales covering the carapace of the turtle, which is of marine habits and found in tropical seas. THE CLAIM FOR FOOD FURNISHED TO WASHINGTON'S MEN—The claim was that of the heirs of James Bell, who allegedly went into debt to the amount of $6,056 to assure the Revolutionary Army a few days' rations during their campaign pending against the U. S. Government dating back to our Revolutionary War. The adjudication of these claims is within the province of an Act of Congress. This claim recently was brought to the attention of Representative Hartley, of Kearny, N. J., by the so-called Richardson estate.

GRIMES GOES TO CARDINALS

NEW YORK, June 17.—(AP.)—Two big baseball trades have been swung as frantic club-owners and managers seek to strengthen their lineups for the crucial engagements just ahead.

In the National League, Burleigh Grimes, veteran spitball ace, has been traded by the Boston Braves to the St. Louis Cardinals for "Wee Willie" Sherdel and Fred Frankhouse in a deal involving nothing but pitchers.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox have exchanged Art Shires, once pugnacious first baseman, for Garland Braxton, pitcher, and Benny Tate, catcher, of the Washington Senators.

The Braves-Cardinals deal came as no surprise to baseball men who have known that the clubs have been trying to get together on the trade for some time. Grimes, one of the highest-salaried pitchers in the league, came to the Braves from Pittsburgh this season in exchange for Percy Lee Jones, southpaw, and an unnamed amount of cash.

Emil Fuchs, owner of the Braves, hopes to bolster his pitching staff with the addition of Sherdel and Frankhouse. The former, chiefly a slow-ball pitcher, has been considered one of the steadiest of the Cardinals' pitchers, and Frankhouse has been used chiefly in relief roles.

The trade by which Shires goes to Washington was entirely unexpected. Manager Donie Bush made it clear that he was letting Shires go, not because of any unruliness on the part of baseball's onetime bad boy, but solely because he thought the trade would strengthen the White Sox.

Clark Griffith, owner of the Senators, said that Shires would be used regularly at first base until Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, recovers from a bad charley horse.

Sport Vignettes

Babe Ruth tells a story about the big hayseed making his first appearance on the town baseball team . . . . He hit the ball a mile over the center fielder's head into a corn field and stood his ground as the fielders took up the chase to retrieve it . . . . "Run, run!" his teammates yelled . . . . "Heck, I'll buy you fellows another ball," the hayseed came back as he, even as Cal Coolidge, declined to run . . . . Early next month, they're going to have a big celebration in Braddock to commemorate the one hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary of General Braddock's fight with the Indians . . . . It must have been some battle, for Apples Meyers is trying to sign 'em for a return bout in the Meyers Bowl . . . . Al Becker, of Sheraden, the local amateur middleweight champion, who makes his professional debut against Billy Brent in one of the bouts on the Hickey Park card Thursday night, is an exceptionally promising ring youngster . . . . He is only 20 years old and has been boxing as an amateur for a year and a half, during which time he has had approximately 70 bouts . . . . He is sturdily built and possesses extraordinarily large hands, which have given him a knockout punch . . . . He has lost only two decisions in his entire career, one against Billy Winso in an extra round at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C., and the other to Ring Larsen, of Boston, in the final round of the national senior championships at Boston last spring . . . . In February, he knocked out Bumps Wright, the Canadian champion, in a bout at Toronto . . . . He has just about finished mastering the carpenter's trade, but prefers boxing if he can make a go of it . . . . He got into the sport through winning a fist fight in McKees Rocks . . . . His mates urged him to join the Charvis Club, of the Rocks, and fight under its colors and he did . . . . He lives near the Graybers in Sheraden, that is, Al Grayber, the referee and former middleweight boxer, and his brother, Frank (Red) Grayber, who was a star in the amateur mitt ranks for a number of years and also is a veteran independent football player . . . . Becker will do his professional scrapping under the dual management of Jack Metz and Jack London . . . . New Wilmington Fetes John Lawther

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., June 17.—One hundred business and professional men here gave a testimonial banquet in honor of John D. Lawther, resigned basketball coach, at Westminster College last night in the Methodist Church.

Attorney William McElwee acted as toastmaster and was the principal speaker. He presented a purse to Lawther on behalf of the men of the town. Lawther goes to Freeport, L. I., High School next year.

Eddie Jacobs Wins In Delaware Play

WILMINGTON, Del., June 17.—(AP.)—Robert Ryan, Yale University, furnished the only upset in the annual Delaware State turf court tennis championship at the Wilmington Country Club yesterday by defeating Donald Strachan, Princeton University, seeded fourth, to advance to the third round. The scores were 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

THE LOWDOWN ON THE BUCS

By THE BENCHWARMER.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—Well, folks, I've been on a lot of merry-go-rounds and I've roomed with some dizzy ball-players, but I, they don't get me out of this Baker Bowl soon, I'm gonna ask J. we. to send me to the Arizona State League or some other wild circuit, where men are men and ball parks have no fences.

When them magnates put the O. K. on the lively ball yesterday they should have batted 1000 for the day by ordering a decoration for the bird that laid out this park. But the dear old public can take it like nobody's business.

I saw some of them people that paid 25 dollars for seats for the fight the other night and when they got to their seats they were in a sunken garden almost a sleeper jump from the ring, and they didn't even have a radio to find out what was goin' on.

They were all squawkin' as loud as Pirate fans when Hack Wilson comes to the plate. But I'll bet the next time there's a fight the same birds will be fighting to pay the 25 berries again.

An' that's the way baseball is gettin'. The magnates hold meetand say everything is O. K. and the fans come in and cheer a game that would make a scientific player like Honus Wagner or Johnny Evers leave the ball park in disgust.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—The baseball hippodrome involving the Pirates and Phillies is slated to come to a close this afternoon in the Baker Bowl. In the sandlot travesty so far enacted, the Pirates have rolled up 37 runs, which entitles them to one ball game.

Even as the magnates were putting the stamp of approval on baseball conditions in the National League, the Buccos and Quakers were staging one of the biggest farces in a season of farces. Case-hardened Western Union telegraphers, while they realized the more runs scored the more business for the company, shed tears as they saw what was supposed to be a big-league ball game yesterday. The score of the terrible exhibition was 18 to 14.

If you want to know how bad were our Pirates, just imagine a club that can't win on 14 tallies and you begin to get some appreciation of the tendencies of the team in this particular game.

PHILS AS BAD

But the Phillies were just as bad, the only thing being they pushed a few more of their pop-flies against the notorious fence. If a couple of clubs in the Middle Atlantic League had staged the same game it would have been razzed from the start to the finish.

As they made ready for the final game of a disastrous trip, the Pirates were hoping that Larry French would be able to hold the Quakers in such a manner as to enable the Buccos to overpower them on the offensive. Lou Koupal probably will twirl for the home team.

The disappointing play of the Pirates on the present jaunt has brought a card of only four successes as against eight setbacks. Meantime the Pirates are in ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Gate receipts at those St. Louis turnstiles are still suffering from loss of circulation. We have not played to enough people to pay our carfare out to the ball grounds. What the Browns should do to solve this problem is to start playing night baseball in St. Louis and then call off the games on account of darkness. Then they would be getting somewhere. The Browns' pitching staff is one of the cleanest in the league. It ought to be, they have taken enough shower baths. The difference between the Browns and Red Sox is the same as the difference between Roquefort and Camembert.

HOOVER RECEIVES HEARST RIFLE CHAMPS

TARGET ACES DECORATED BY DAVISON

A special Service.

WASHINGTON, June 17. Eighteen collegiate rifleman winners of the 1930 Hearst Trophy matches were decorated with gold medals by Assistant Secretary of War Davison, and were then received by President Hoover at the White House yesterday.

The medals also were the gift of Mr. Hearst, whose guests the young marksmen-shooters are during their stay in the capital.

The matches were instituted by Mr. Hearst nine years ago and are shot in three divisions.

The senior division is made up of students in the colleges and universities. The second group is composed of students at regular military schools and the third is made up of students in the high schools.

N. DAKOTA WINS

The senior trophy was won this year by the team representing North Dakota Agricultural College which barely nosed out the team from Lehigh University of Bethlehem, Pa. The North Dakotans made a total score of 931 out of a possible 1,000.

The junior class winner was the team representing Western Kentucky State Teachers College with a score of 960.

In addition to the three winning teams composed of five members each, the three leading individual scorers in the respective classes were also presented with medals. They are Roger H. Taylor of the University of Missouri, winner of the senior division contest with a score of 197 out of a possible 200. Donald F. Anderson, winner in the military school division with a score of 196, and George C. Wells, winner in the high school class with a score of 197.

GARDEN PLANS RETURN GO

NEW YORK, June 17.—(INS)—While Max Schmeling was making plans to fly to Endicott, N. Y., Madison Square Garden officials continued its efforts to dissuade the German to change his plans for not fighting until he is freed of obligations to his former manager, Arthur Bulow.

The Garden was said to be so anxious to stage another Schmeling-Jack Sharkey fight here in September that the German had been offered 37½ per cent of the gate receipts and a guarantee to reimburse Bulow an additional 20 per cent of the amount of the Schmeling purse, the latter covering the share due to the former manager under his contract, still binding.

CHICAGO TO BE SITE?

CHICAGO, June 17.—(AP)—Chicago and the Soldier Field Stadium are under consideration as the site for another world heavyweight championship battle, this time between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey.

Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, last night said William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, had asked if the Illinois commission would sanction such a bout for Chicago. Gen. Clinnin said a license would be granted if the garden complied with the commission rules.

MAYOR KLINE BACKS JUNIOR TOURNEY

Mayor Charles H. Kline has taken the trouble to make public his sentiments in relation to the third annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Western Pennsylvania amateur junior golf tournament, to be held at the Schenley Park municipal links on Monday, July 7. Mayor Kline, in a statement, said:

"The annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph junior amateur golf tournament, inaugurated by your publication three years ago, deserves the highest possible commendation. It is indeed gratifying to note and indorse this popular movement. I know of no more inspiring sight to witness, as I have on a previous occasion, this gathering of the younger generation on one of the city's most popular playgrounds.

"It is entirely fitting and proper that the Schenley Park golf course should be set aside for these boys on this occasion.

"The whole affair is an inspiration to the youth of the community, and I am sure the response to your invitation will be a further evidence of its popularity. You may rest assured that you will have the hearty co-operation of the Bureau of Parks and its employes, and it is my pleasure in advance of this auspicious occasion to assure you of my hearty support and to wish you the success such an event deserves."

Now, isn't that fine fellows? That's what your Mayor thinks of the tournament you are going to play in at Schenley Park on July 7. You know it is open to all amateur golfers 19 years of age and under who do not attend institutions of learning above preparatory school grades—which includes caddies 17 years of age and under. It doesn't cost a cent—there's no entry fee. Send your entry in NOW before it's too late.

FINTEX, ETNA BATTLE FOR LOOP LEAD

By TOM BIRKS.

Fintex will be fighting for the leadership of the Central League this evening when Etna invades Warrington Park to try and put a crimp into the Clothes boys. Manager Pickles feels that if his team can get over the Etna hurdle that the first half title will be safe.

The Central race has been the sensation of local sandlot baseball, and Lincoln Civics, Soho Board of Trade and the Allegheny Collegians all have a chance to win the flag.

Soho hooks up with the Collegians at Moulvine Park. Both clubs have lost three games and can ill afford to lose another.

DORMONT FACES TEST

Only one battle will be staged in the West Penn circuit. Wilmerding will do its stuff at Dormont. The Airbrake boys are going to try to give the Strucker outfit its first defeat.

Arman, the veteran hurler will be opposed to Leo Carroll, as a pitchers' duel should develop.

In the City League, W. O. W. goes to Pleasant Valley, St. Johns meets Jimmy Smiths at Magee Field, J. J. Thomas at North Side Civics at the Salt Works grounds and Book Shoe clashes with Pop Geers Stove Civics at Shoe. This is the first time in many weeks that all of the City League clubs have been idle since the same evening.

SMITHS TOP GRAYS

Last evening's sandlot card, pretty generally was washed out by the heavy rains, but the Homestead Greys and the Jimmy Smiths played their scheduled game, the Smiths downing the Negro stars, 2 to 1.

Carl Stewart pitched a fine game for the Smiths, giving up only three hits and fanning eight of the Greys.

Watts Gunn, runner-up to Bobby Jones in the National amateur championship at Oakmont a couple of years ago, failed to make the grade. Tommy Armour's brother, Alexander, better known as Sandy, found the going too tough. Carl P. Kauffmann, National public links champion for the last three years, took a 6 on the par 4 eighteenth to be one stroke outside of the playoff for last place, while Emil Loeffler, of Oakmont, failed to turn in a card for his first round.

With the course in ideal shape, the cups in fair places on the large, spacious greens—every one of the contestants were loud in their praise for the Pittsburgh Field Club links.

Mrs. R. W. Kiser, Pittsburgh Country Club, led the field in the one-day tournament at Shannopin yesterday, turning in a card of 97-20-77.

without saying anything about the change. The larger gates this year exist only where there is enthusiasm over a pennant contender. The trailing clubs are drawing very lightly, and the decrease is likely to continue as long as the public is asked to accept as major league baseball such atrocities as the 19-to-12 and 18-to-14 affairs that the Pirates and Phillies perpetrated Saturday and yesterday.

Fidel La Barba

ONE OF THE smartest fighters outside the ring as well as in it is Fidel La Barba, coast featherweight. His earning day are far from being over, and he is due to make one of the richest financial hauls of his career when his postponed bout with Kid Chocolate takes place in New York next month, but even if he were to fight no more, he would never be in want. La Barba has invested his money wisely in stocks and bonds and also has a trust fund. He adds to this fund from the proceeds of each fight, and he and his wife can live comfortably on the income. La Barba differs from a number of other prominent leather pushers who meet your eye when you look around the Queensberry circle. Many of them have earned lots more than the former flyweight champion, but lacked his thrift and foresight and haven't a thing to show for it.

23 AMATEURS QUALIFY FOR OPEN

NEW YORK, June 17 (AP).—Of the 150 players who will tee off in the national open golf championship at the Inter-Lachen Club, Minneapolis, July 10, 11 and 12, only 23 will be amateurs.

District qualifying rounds throughout the country yesterday saw 98 professionals and 14 amateurs gain the 112 vacant places, the other 38 having been filled through exemptions. In the 38 exemptions were nine amateurs, Bobby Jones, defending champion; Francis Ouimet, Don Moe, Dr. O. F. Willing, George Voigt, George Von Elm, Roland MacKenzie and Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, all members of the 1930 Walker Cup team, and Cyril J. T. Tolley, of England, the only foreign entry.

In the main, other first-rank golfers who failed to earn a place in the exempt list came through the qualifying round with flying colors.

In the New York district, Johnny Farrell, open champion in 1928, and T. P. Perkins, former British amateur titleholder, tied for second place behind Rocky Rich, and other qualifiers here included such well known figures as Bill Mehlhorn, Joe Turnesa and Johnny Golden.

JESS SWEETSER FAILS

Lester Bolstad, Minneapolis amateur, former Big Ten champion, led the field in the St. Paul district, and another amateur, John Goodman, of Omaha, who eliminated Bobby Jones in the first round of the last amateur championship, set the pace in the Omaha district.

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, pro, successfully passed the test in the Philadelphia district, and at Chicago, Jock Hutchison and Harry Cooper, pros, easily qualified.

On the other side of the fence, three crack amateurs and a half dozen well-known pros failed to qualify in New York. The casualty list included the amateurs, Jess Sweetser, amateur champion in 1922; Eddie Held, Canadian amateur titleholder, and Maurice McCarthy, Jr. Among the pros who failed to get into the charmed circle were Mike Brady and Bobby Cruickshank, both of whom have tied for the open championship, only to lose on a playoff; Cyril Walker, open champion in 1924; Tony Manero, Tom Kerrigan and Mike Turnesa.

Bunion Derbyist Seeks Evidence For Suit

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 17.—C. C. Pyle's second annual Bunion Derby, staged last year, was recalled here yesterday when Sam Richman, American Legion entry from New York City, raced into Waynesburg to obtain data for a civil suit he is planning against Pyle to recover $3,000 which he claims due him for finishing fourth in the cross-country race.

Richman is making back across the route followed by the derby last year and is obtaining records from Chambers of Commerce banks and other institutions which donated money to help underwrite the affair in the fight against Pyle who claims he is unable to pay the racers because he is broke.

LOCALS SEEK NET TITLE

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN,
Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 17.—Terrific showers held Northern Ohio periodically in their grasp yesterday and obviated all possibility of competition in the Ohio State Tennis championships on the nine splendid clay courts of the Cleveland Tennis and Racquet Club. Last evening, however, there was a fine ruddy sunset with official prospect held forth of settled weather throughout the remainder of the week.

The entry list of nearly 100 here bears quite a Pittsburgh tinge. Slated for milling today are no less than six netmen most familiarly known in Steel City court circles, while two more from the realm of Pa Pitt have defaulted and still another duo will arrive just prior to the start of the inter-city doubles.

By way of explanation of the foregoing, let us elucidate. Sam Keller, former Duquesne varsity captain, will head the West Penn delegation into singles tussling by taking on Harvey Jacobson, local product, while his erstwhile Bluff teammate, Jake Olko, will meet Milton Ganger, likewise a Cleveland youth. Milton King Kiski crack, will tangle with J. J. Fox, also a Forest Citian, and Sullivan, of the P. A. A., will try conclusions with Ralph Colbert, a fourth Cuyahoga contestant.

Rounding out the Pittsburgh sextet are Byron Baur, ex-Pitt leader, and Joe Schmid, once of Carnegie Tech. This powerful pair will joust under the banner of Erie, their home town, but their lengthy periods of residence in the iron metropolis entitle them to consideration under Pittsburgh heading.

Baur, seeded eighth, will engage a tough opponent, Bill Brown, of Columbus, right off the bat, with Schmid drawing an even more difficult assignment in encountering Gordon Braudt, Chicago ace and seeded entrant.

Billy O'Loughlin, driving Pitt freshman mainstay, who was unable to make the trip to Cleveland, was seeded seventh, but has been defaulted, and the same fate was meted out to Wally Arensberg, 1929 Shady Side Academy captain, who switched plans to go to the Delaware state championships at Wilmington this week.

L. WANER BACK

The one big ray of hope broke through the clouds yesterday in the announcement that Lloyd Waner would join his mates today. Lloyd will be discharged from the Union Memorial Hospital in Baltimore in time to catch up with his pals and return to Pittsburgh. The team will head homeward tonight, the Giants being scheduled to open a series at Forbes Field tomorrow.

Manager Ens also is quite certain that Steve Swetonic will soon be ready to get back on the job. The smart pitcher from the North Side is reported as being almost recovered from his operation for removal of his appendicitis.

KREMER HIT HARD

The Pirates this morning were trying to forget that thing of yesterday in the Baker Bowl. Shotton's clouters hopped on Ray Kremer for three tallies in the first round and then after resting on their laurels for one round they opened a fresh attack in the third. Kremer came out in favor of Ervin Brame.

HERRERA BOUT OFF UNTIL TOMORROW

By HARRY KECK.

Continued rain shortly after noon today caused the Meyers Bowl management to postpone again its Tony Herrera-Eddie Ellis boxing show originally scheduled for last night and put off to tonight. It now has been set for tomorrow night and if rain again interferes it will be called off entirely.

Meanwhile the Bowl is going ahead with its future cards. Appies Meyers, manager, plans to leave for New York tonight to make an effort to close for a world championship battle between Midget Wolgast, the flyweight king, and Willie Davies, of Charleroi, to be fought possibly July 30.

The Bowl management has been clamoring for the bout ever since Davies defeated Black Bill in its arena recently but has not been able to close it by telephone and correspondence. Meyers mission to the big town is to confer with Johnny Keyes, manager of the Midget. If the show is put on, with the title at stake, it will be necessary to advance the prices for the night from $1, $2 and $3 to $2, $3 and $5 to pay the guarantee Wolgast demands. This, however, is not important as the fans here always have paid $5 tops for bouts involving champions except for the non-title showings last year and this at the Bowl.

DATES ARE BOOKED

Gradually the slate for the Bowl is filling up weeks ahead. Next Monday night Benny Bass, the junior-lightweight champion, meets Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, in a non-title match; the Jackie Rodgers-Johnny Datto bout is back in for June 30, and Tony Herrera will be back, provided he wins tomorrow on July 7. The Buck McTiernan - Farmer Joe Cooper return match now likely will not be fought before July 14.

The entire card arranged for last night stands for tomorrow. The principals scaled in at 3 o

California Gas Price War Emphasizes Unfavorable Oil Industry Status

The outbreak of a new gasoline price war in California coming on top of the recent action by Humble Oil in moving to cut its crude oil purchases was not looked upon as cheering news in New York oil circles. Unbiased observers were of the opinion that it merely emphasized anew the unfavorable status of the industry in some directions, just at a time when the business is approaching its biggest consuming season. It was taken as an indication that there was too large a surplus of gasoline in California which evidently because of low refinery price schedules prevailing cannot readily be moved eastward.

Actual business improvement is not necessary to bring the turn-about in the stock market, as so many seem to think, according to McNeel's Financial Service. In its latest bulletin, McNeel's points out that the careful study of history will reveal that at the end of every major recession in the stock market this century, rising stock prices have anticipated improvement in general business by six to 10 months. The further decline in the stock market has brought some to the conclusion that there must be actual business improvement before the turn-about in the market can come. However, it only requires a careful study of history to see that this is not so, and that the turn-about in the stock market can come, and usually does come, before the actual recovery in business sets in.

The weakness in United Corporation yesterday needed no further explanation than was afforded by the sharp recession which occurred in utility stocks, of which it is a large holder. Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas and Electric, and United Gas Improvement, in all of which it holds a substantial interest, were among the weak features of the day, ruling generally at new low levels or the current decline.

Report that the Taplin interests are negotiating with the Pennsylvania Railroad interest for the purchase from the latter of holdings of Wabash and Lehigh, indicates an effort being made by railroad operators to work out a fifth-system along the lines set forth in the recent revised plan put forth by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is understood that only the question of price holds up a deal which would bring the foregoing roads to a new Taplin-formed company. The Interstate Commerce Commission plan, it was recalled, included the Norfolk and Western and the Seaboard Air Line in the new proposed fifth system. Pennsylvania has long held control of the Norfolk and Western.

The action of the market during yesterday particularly as concerned the sharp recessions which developed in many of the most seasoned investment type issues among rails and industrials, was looked upon as indicating that a rather good class of selling was making itself felt in the general market. With stocks of the type of Atchison, Union Pacific, American Telephone and Steel common making new lows for the year, there was at least the suggestion that some amounts of those issues were coming out of strong hands.

Naturally the sharp decline in Steel common to new low levels for the year and to within 9 points of the panic low of last year, proved extremely discouraging and tended to accelerate the pace of general liquidations yesterday. At yesterday's low level steel was down more than 40 points from the year's high of 198¼, and was more than 100 points under the record high of 261¼ reached in September last year, the stock was the only one of the leaders to indicate anything in the way of aggressive support when it slipped through the previous low just before midday, but even here, assistance was on a scale down basis when the selling became heavy.

STEEL OUTLOOK HOPEFUL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 17.—New business with secondary iron and steel interests in the Youngstown district is on a declining basis and for the first six months will not measure up as favorably as last year. Executives are hopeful however that conditions will improve and that the turn for the better will come in midsummer.

The Standard Slag Company reports heavy shipments of slag largely for railroad ballast and highway construction.

Business of the Bessemer Limestone and Cement Company measures up to that of last year but is more diversified in distribution.

The Peerless Electric Company, Warren, is operating day and night shifts and Sunday turns to meet unusual demands for electric fans, precipitated by hot weather. The company is manufacturing a ventilator and is further diversifying its production.

The Truscon Steel Company and the Youngstown Pressed Steel Company, two of the district's largest fabricating interests, are running behind last year, executives advised. General Fireproofing sales, on the other hand, are quite satisfactory.

Powell Pressed Steel Company and the Niles Steel Products Company are behind last year's schedules, but expect to equal the 1929 record.

Portland Cement Production Gains

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Portland cement industry in May 1930, produced 17,271,000 barrels, shipped 17,210,000 barrels from the mills and had in stock at the end of the month 30,928,000 barrels, according to Department of Commerce. This was an increase of 6.9 per cent in production, 3.0 per cent in shipments and 4.4 per cent in stocks at the mills, compared with May, 1929.

Refiners Report Less Sugar Melted

NEW YORK, June 17.—Total melt of 15 United States refiners from January 1 to June 27, 1930 was 2,055,000 long tons, compared to 2,256,000 tons in the same period a year ago.

Deliveries for the same period this year totaled 1,840,000 long tons against 2,020,000 in the period January 1 to June 8, 1929.

FLINTKOTE NET INCREASES

BOSTON, June 17.—The Flintkote Company, which owns or controls more than 1,000 patents and while operating under those patents licenses others not only in the roofing industry but in many other fields, reports that income from royalties this year has steadily increased over last year, while its general business is improving each month.

During the second half of 1929 the roofing industry was in the throes of bitter competition. As a result of a more stable situation in this field the roofing department of Flintkote has shown successive gains each month this year. Volume in May showed an increase over April of 21 per cent but was 18 per cent behind May of last year. May 1929 was an exceptionally good month, but business booked this year is of greater significance as prices are considerably improved. Reduced home building this spring has militated against a greater improvement.

Frequently the advertisements of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company and its Associated Banks state:

"It is the policy of the Associated Banks to lend their funds in the Pittsburgh District to promote local prosperity."

An example of how this policy is followed is found in the mortgage investments in the South Hills District held by the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company and its associated bank, the Dormont Savings and Trust Company.

454 Mortgages for $3,657,481.81 on SOUTH HILLS PROPERTY

It would not be difficult for the banks to invest this considerable sum in a few large loans to out of town corporations not particularly interested in the progress of Pittsburgh, in which case the money would work for the welfare of other communities.

By lending at home, substantial citizens have homes and business buildings in the Pittsburgh District, and the proceeds of the loans are spent through local channels of trade, to the general betterment of business.

Say It With Flowers

Probably the poet-naturalists who discovered "the language of the flowers" never dreamed that nature's beautiful blooms would serve man as eloquently as they do today.

Thanks to the florists who have given their slogan "Say It with Flowers" such wide publicity, the giving of flowers has become more than just a polite gesture. It has become a means of communication, a medium of expression: flowers for sympathy, flowers for love, flowers for forgiveness, flowers to convey thoughts unexpressed by words.

Thanks, also, to modern methods of cultivation, flowers may be purchased in the florists' shops of Pittsburgh at prices within the reach of everyone.

Many Pittsburgh florists are depositors at the Mellon National Bank . . . To the others, we extend a cordial invitation to become depositors or make use of the bank's facilities in any way that suits their convenience.

A MAN of [illegible] this week [illegible] est honor [illegible] ity industry [illegible] United States can [illegible] He is W[illegible]liam Atl[illegible]s Mississippi farm lad [illegible] of a billion [illegible] and of [illegible] companies.

How has [illegible] ment be[illegible] backing [illegible] "pull?

It was [illegible] unselfish [illegible] wards others [illegible] was possible [illegible] over all the [illegible] curring [illegible] mony, [illegible] within [illegible]

HENRY [illegible] selecting M[illegible] of the ex[illegible] Henry L. D[illegible] and firs[illegible] Cities Se[illegible] marked [illegible] had never [illegible] with a [illegible] benefit [illegible] most fruitful [illegible] which were [illegible] the business [illegible] beneficial [illegible] Said Mr. D[illegible] other day:

"He has certainly proved to be one of the big business men of the country and I think there is more in store for him. It can be said for him that rapid promotion has spoiled him not at all, and I know of no greater guarantee of future greatness.

FRANK R. [illegible] Doherty [illegible] analyzes Jones thus:

"His rapid rise in one of the largest industrial companies in the world is due to his ability to organize to the intelligent use of a keen analytical mind, to not shirking from hard work and to a sense of fair play by listening to all sides of a proposition."

Says another associate H. O. Caster:

"The reasons for his advancement and success have been his ability and energy. His is an aggressive organized mind. His mental processes are logical. He is not subject to bias or prejudice but he gets the facts on the table and deliberately makes up his mind from these facts. In his dealings with others he is considerated fair and just."

BORN on a farm near Webb City, Missouri, Jones was janitor of the Crossroads School when 11, doing a man's work on the farm—he is well over six feet—at 13, acted as grocery clerk during school vacations, became a full-fledged hand on a western ranch, got a humble job with his hometown utility company (a Doherty property), saved enough money to put himself part way through college, returned to the utility industry, and climbed step by step until his achievements, especially in straightening out rate tangles before state commissions, won recognition at New York headquarters.

His keenness, his ceaseless industry, his initiative, his modesty, his unselfishness made him more and more of a managerial factor. And after two senior Doherty executives died within a brief period, Jones was made Doherty's right hand man.

WHEN I asked Mr. Jones for some suggestions useful to other ambitious young men, he at first demurred but finally I wrung this confession from him:

"I have always taken my job seriously, but I have deliberately tried not to take myself too seriously.

"I have always willingly accepted the assistance of others and wherever possible have tried to get their aid in carrying forward what I had in hand.

"I have never allowed myself to believe that I was indispensable to the organization.

"I have never felt, nor do I feel now, that I have 'arrived,' for, the greater my responsibilities have become, the more I appreciate how impossible it is for one individual to do everything.

"Long ago I realized that there were many people in the organization who knew better how to do some things than I did.

"I have tried deliberately not to abuse authority and have always tried to use a little less than I actually had.

"My ambition has always been to get things done in the organization by the co-ordination of the efforts of others rather than to attempt to dictate or direct the manner in which they were to be done."

This should encourage many who doubt the feasibility of rising to the top in our modern gigantic corporations.

"Any young man in a large organization who is willing to pay the price in personal sacrifice, who is willing to subordinate everything to his work, has thrown at him—or can make for himself—all the opportunities he can prove capable of handling. Usually there are responsible jobs going begging because not enough men are willing to sweat enough to master the problems involved."

Wabash System Nearer To Completion

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FURTHER PROGRESS towards the completion of the Wabash system as proposed in the Interstate Commerce Commission railroad consolidation plan was indicated yesterday by F. E. Taplin, president of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia. He also made it known that steps have been taken to save the Pennsylvania from possible embarrassment over its interests in competing lines which have not been allotted to it under the general railroad consolidation plan.

In testifying before the commission, Taplin said that a plan is being arranged by which the Pennsylvania will sell its controlling interests in the Wabash and in the Lehigh Valley to a new holding company or else to the Pittsburgh and West Virginia. He also stated that the proposed holding company would have no difficulty in buying the 220,000 shares of Pittsburgh and West Virginia stock which he and his associates recently sold to the Pennsylvania.

Removes Legal Difficulties

IN RAILROAD CIRCLES much interest had been shown in the probable attitude to be taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the Pennsylvania's domination of the principal railroads in the fifth Eastern trunk line system provided in the railway consolidation plan. It was generally believed that the commission would take steps under the Clayton Act to prevent the Pennsylvania from dominating the Wabash system.

While the Pennsylvania, through its close working arrangements with Taplin, would still be a powerful influence over the Wabash system, the proposed change in the ownership of the stocks will probably eliminate the danger of the Pennsylvania getting into any difficulties, since direct ownership of the stock will be out of the road's hands.

Taplin Position Changed

THE ANNOUNCEMENT GREATLY clarified the position of Taplin in the railroad merger situation. The recent publication of the fact that the Taplin interest in the Pittsburgh and West Virginia had been sold to the Pennsylvania led to the belief that the Cleveland financier was stepping out of the picture, even though the deal was accompanied by an agreement that Taplin would remain in active management of his road. It now becomes obvious that Taplin is merely working in close co-operation with the Pennsylvania and that he will probably be the dominant figure in the new Wabash system.

The co-operation of the Pennsylvania in bringing the Wabash system together makes its completion far more probable than if the individual lines were left to themselves. Financially, at least the proponents of the new system will have a better chance of competing against such powerful financial interests as the Van Sweringens of Cleveland, who are understood to have the backing of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Battle Lines Drawn

THE VAN SWERINGENS have the Baltimore and Ohio working directly with them in furthering their consolidation plans. The New York Central has also been working along the same general lines. This leaves the Pennsylvania and its protege, the Wabash system, in direct opposition to the other powers in the existing Eastern trunk line situation.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Old Miss Mason

Grandmother Sumner peered across the lawn from her kitchen window. Then she brought her spectacles from her white hair down into position before her eyes and peered again.

"I do believe," she said, "that old Miss Mason is sick—that bottle of milk has been out there all day."

I had come on to visit my grandmother. I knew Celia Mason slightly. Since long before I could remember, she had lived in the neat little white cottage near grandmother's home.

I am afraid that at this time I was selfishly uninterested in the old spinster's state of health or lack of it. I had my own troubles right then, or believed that I did.

When a girl expects to be married within a few months and then all plans have to be indefinitely postponed it leaves her very much upset, even though Wally and I had not announced our engagement.

I lived in Unionville, a hundred miles away from Danville. There was something rather romantic in meeting Wallace Dutton. It was two years previous. I had run down to visit grandmother. We went across to say hello to Miss Mason as I always dropped in when I went to see grandmother.

As we were around the side path to the door I saw a young man putting up storm windows as it was then late in autumn. After we greeted Miss Mason she said: "I don't suppose you ever met Wally, Mr. Dutton. He lives in Unionville now."

I smiled. Unionville was a city of a hundred thousand.

Wedding Date Set

"Wally, come and meet Ina Lane," Miss Mason said.

He came down and we shook hands.

Danville was Wally's home town but he had a cement plant in Unionville. He always ran over and visited with Miss Mason, and always found something to do to help her. Like many others he had reasons to be fond of her—she had been a great help in his mother's home through various troubles.

That was the way we became acquainted.

When I went back home Wally came to see me. We became good friends and gradually fell in love. For a long while we had an understanding. Wally wanted to sell his cement plant. He wanted to get out of it—it was unhealthy. He wanted to go inland to the southern end of the state and take up fruit farming on a big scale. This would get him away from the confinement of the office and from the eternal dust that hurt him, and it would take him out of doors.

He thought he was going to sell. A representative of the Consolidated Companies assured Wally that they would buy his plant, in the formation of a merger.

But plans of men are never certain. Some other big men from the Consolidated Company had been there, sized up the situation and decided that they wouldn't have to buy. They could simply ignore Wally and his plant. Freeze him out!

This meant that Wally was not only going to lose the chance to get the big fruit farm, but that he would, in a few years, be squeezed out by the trust and lose his plant entirely.

And this meant that we had to postpone our marriage indefinitely.

Of course I thought I was the most unfortunate girl alive.

Grandmother Sumner went across to old Miss Mason's home. She was gone an hour.

"She's ailing a lot," Grandmother said when she came back.

We took over some broths and jellies. Grandmother telephoned the minister, who called, and a number of old Miss Mason's friends called.

Wally Dutton came home. He had left his plant in able hands. He wanted to see me. He knew I was there. He also wanted to get away from it all and think. He was as much discouraged as I.

Humors Miss Mason

Wally trimmed Miss Mason's lawn and brought flowers in to her. He sat and talked with her and did what few little things he could. Then we would take walks, but they weren't very happy walks because we were both discouraged. Wally couldn't sell his plant and he was going to lose it. He had to get out in the open and he couldn't buy a place.

And yet when he was with Miss Mason he kept up a smiling face and tried to cheer her.

Old Miss Mason seemed to get worse. Grandmother Sumner was worried.

"If she is as bad as that hadn't you better send for her relatives?" I asked.

"I don't think she has a relative in the world," Wally said. "A man used to come now and then but I never saw him. She had been nursemaid in his father's family when he was a youngster and he seemed fond of her, but as for relatives—"

He turned to grandmother.

"No relatives are there, Mrs. Sumner?" he asked.

"I don't believe she's got a cousin or nephew or niece in the wide world," Grandmother said.

The next day Miss Mason became much worse.

"I'm going to do it!" grandmother said.

"Do what?" I asked.

"Never mind, dearie," she answered. She put on her bonnet, however, and went down to the village, only a short distance.

Miss Mason became worse. The doctor came and went and said that it was probably a matter of days, if not hours.

Wally never left the house then. He told me of the hours Old Miss Mason had set up with him, and his sisters when they were youngsters and sick, and of her care of his mother during her last sickness.

"God knows there isn't much I can do for her, Ina," he said, "but at least I can stay here and give her the medicine and keep her from dying all alone."

I got awfully bitter that night as I thought about it—not with pool near Old Miss Mason but with life in general. Here was Wally Dutton, as fine a young man as ever was—and he was being squeezed out of all of his property by a soulless trust, losing his chance for a fruit farm, and health—and unable to marry me as he hoped to do. Was there any justice in the world?

The day after this Miss Mason was lower than ever.

Handsome Man

I hadn't finished my sentence when grandmother rushed to the door.

"Hello, Johnny Armstrong!" she cried.

"How is she?" the man asked and then: "I'm glad you sent word, Mrs. Sumner."

Oh! I cried.

Wally had put a book against the window. We had agreed that if Miss Mason got worse he put put a book against a window pane and we'd run over.

Grandmother explained this to Mr. Armstrong as we hurried across the lawn.

He was a big, handsome man, not more than 30 or so, and evidently very prosperous.

We tip-toed in.

This John Armstrong and my Wally stared at each other when they met then Mr. Armstrong went to the bed.

"Hello there, Celia!" he said.

The effect was startling. Old Miss Mason opened her eyes and tried to sit up.

"Johnnie!" she said.

"Same Johnnie, Celia, same Johnnie you used to see fix and pray over and tuck in bed—come now, Celia, you just make up your mind to get better and you will be!"

She shook her head and smiled.

"I'm not afraid, Johnny, but it was good of you to come—you such a busy and important man."

"Come! Of course I'd come. Why, Celia, you are the only mother I ever knew—you have always been like a mother to me."

I heard grandmother stifle a sob.

"Yes, Johnnie—" A feeble arm was raised to him.

John Armstrong leaned over and kissed her.

When he laid her back we all filed out. Wally stood glaring into space. I wondered if he was jealous because the poor old spinster had another friend. Ten minutes later John Armstrong came out. He made no effort to hide his tears.

John Armstrong remained for the funeral. He asked grandmother about Wally. That was the first I knew that he was acquainted with him. I wondered why Wally didn't tell me.

After the funeral Wally came to me and took me in his arms.

Owns Plant

"I've been all wrong. There is a God," he said. That John Armstrong was the big man who gave orders to freeze me out of my plant. Now he is going to pay me my price, just because I have been good to his old nurse. I never knew that old Miss Mason had been his nurse. We'll be married next month and go and buy the fruit farm. It seems wrong to be so happy and old Miss Mason just dead, but she'd want us to be happy."

That night Grandmother Sumner and I had a talk. She read from the Bible and then she told me a little story.

"Over 30 years ago," she said, "there was a rich man with an invalid wife. They had a little green country girl to help. It isn't for me to say what was right or wrong, but the little country girl had to be taken away. The man told me all about it. I went with them, the invalid wife and the country girl. The wife died two years later, leaving a little son, so everyone thought. The little country girl cared for baby—cared for him until he was sent away to school. The rich man married a society woman and moved away. He left a life income for the little country girl."

"Was old Miss Mason the country girl?" I finally asked.

"Child," she said, "I—I wanted to cry out when John Armstrong lifted up poor old Miss Mason and told her she had always been like a mother to him. I wanted to cry out—I wanted to say, 'Oh, John Armstrong—don't you know? Don't you know? How could she help—being like a mother to you—when she was?'"

Grandmother closed the Bible.

"Child," she said, "marry and live on your fruit farm with Wally and be happy, but remember this is our secret about old Miss Mason."

His legal instinct is unerring, as evidenced by the fact that he tangles his statements in such a way that it is as impossible for others, as it is for himself, to know just what he means. He is highly ethical in all matters except those involving money, gallantry, truth, and such things as right and wrong. Kline Deserves Praise For Sunday Movie Shows

It is probably no exaggeration to say that thousands have been eagerly waiting to learn when the free Sunday movies would open in the parks. And now, at last, the announcement is made. The entertainments will start Sunday, July 13. They will be given in six parks, or two more than when the plan was put into effect last year. Council and Mayor Charles H. Kline have provided $10,000 to meet expenses.

The Sun-Telegraph compliments Mayor Kline and congratulates the people of Pittsburgh on this program for making Sunday in the city a more pleasant day. It is the best thing the administration has done.

Half a million people, it is estimated, attended the Sunday movies in the parks last year. The Sun-Telegraph's poll has revealed, unmistakably, that the citizens of Pittsburgh are in favor of innocent recreation, such as moving picture shows, on Sunday. For many the day is dull and disagreeable without some such amusement.

Mayor Kline, in arranging for the entertainments, has shown appreciation of a genuine civic need, and provided what is probably the best possible method at this time to satisfy it.

Last year's movies furnish assurance that first-class films will be shown. Undoubtedly a treat is in store for the people.

Motor Club Suggests Ideas for Tube Safety

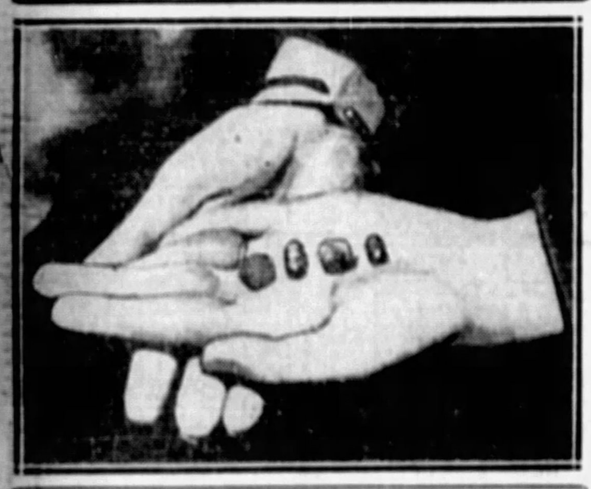
As a suggestion to make the Liberty Tubes safer for motorists, the Pittsburgh Motor Club urges the County Commissioners to cause a white line to be painted on the pavement in the belief that it may keep "snake drivers" in line through psychological effect. White lines along the sidewalk curb and the opposite wall also are asked as safety measures to keep drivers from going too close.

The suggestion is a good one, but it is unlikely that it will hold the "snake driver" in his rightful position. The tube regulations at present provide for the movement of slow traffic in the right traffic lane. Even a safe driver feels that he should not be expected to remain in the rear of a truck and that it is unjust to classify him as a "weaver" if he crosses to the left lane to pass the slower vehicle.

Perhaps this difficulty could be solved by having passing points, say about three posts at which officers are stationed, where passage from the slow to the fast lane could be made under his supervision, permitting no drivers to leave their lanes at other points under penalty of arrest. The regulation, of course, is suggested to apply only at hours of heavy traffic in the morning and afternoon.

Small Bullets. Two Dead

Much Power in Little Things.



THE SMALL BULLETS IN THIS HAND, FIRED FROM REVOLVER WITH MOTHER-OF-PEARL HANDLE, KILLED TWO

"Here's the smell of the blood still; all the perfumes of Arabia will not sweeten this little hand. Oh, oh, oh!"

That's what Lady Macbeth says, after her husband has been and gone and done it, killing treacherously his king.

According to others, the dinosaurs were wiped out when volcanic eruptions filled the atmosphere with dust, making it unfit for the monsters to breathe and cutting off the full force of the sun's actinic rays which dinosaurs needed.

In a great dike a hole so small that a child could stop it with his finger would, if not closed immediately, destroy the dike and flood a whole countryside. A germ so small it cannot be seen under a microscope and will pass through a porcelain filter starts on its way west from China, creating a plague that kills millions.

And, on the other hand, AN IDEA, without size, shape or weight, ten billion times smaller than the smallest germ, gives to human beings the law of gravitation, the steam engine, the spinning jenny, the electric light and everything worth while that we possess.

All of which leads to the fact that in modern prohibition-bootleg civilization a very powerful thing is the little bullet.

The bigness or littleness of things is made clear to our minds BY COMPARISON. You realize how small these little bullets are when you see them lying in the palm of a hand.

These bullets from a tiny pearl-handled revolver were taken from the dead bodies of Mrs. Guy Bates Post, who was the well-known American actress, Adele Ritchie, and her most intimate friend, Mrs. Doris Palmer. The former, according to the officials, killed her friend, then killed herself.

Two lives were cut short by these four tiny pieces of metal, driven by small charges of powder.

Reckless BULLETS, reckless WORDS, reckless making of laws, reckless disregard and contempt of law are at the foundation of our crime wave and our prohibition-bootleg civilization.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The New Theory

Prof. Albert Einstein reaches back into history and bobs up with a handful of scientific moss.

The professor is the mother of the Einstein theory which has scrambled more brains than a chef has eggs.

"Bugs" Baer

Albert's new theory is something about a unified cosmos. This idea may have teeth in it. And it may be only a tooth paste.

He says that space is eating up matter. It's just the opposite in the average city apartment where space is the first thing chewed up by the architect.

We don't know what happens when space nibbles on matter. The professor has a telescope while all we have is a pair of opera glasses.

There is a terrific struggle going on somewhere and it looks as if we will have to toss a few more diplomats on the spears.

We don't understand all these square roots and vanishing points that Albert chins about.

We have heard him talk. And a megaphone won't improve him.

All that we know is a camel doesn't have to be a scientist to know when he comes to an oasis.

Every time a great man opens his mouth words of wisdom rush forth. That's why a tenor sings through his nose.

Suppose space is eating up matter? We will concede that one problem and skip the next two.

In reference to his relativity theory the professor said many of his colleagues didn't agree with them and some thought he was crazy. Well, when a Kansas tornado blows off the roof you would be a sucker to hold on to the chimney.

If the professor wants to meet a real crazy man we will give him a race and let Earl Sande ride him.

Albert now has two pet theories which nobody understands. Mussolini speaks from balconies, President Hoover talks from platforms, and it seems to be Albert's ambition to deliver an oration from the belfry of a Swiss cuckoo clock.

We have good news for the professor. We understand both his inexplicable theories. We know all about relativity and realize that space is gobbling up matter.

Now, if the professor will go quietly into the house, we will lock the door and tie the key to a rabbit.

MAGNETISM AND THE SUN

By Archibald Henderson

It is generally recognized that all variations in magnetic, electric, earth current, and radio conditions on our globe and in polar lights are connected in some way with activities of the sun. The fact of this connection has been established, indirectly, in the following way. These fields are unquestionably modified when the sun's rays are cut off from a portion of the earth and of its atmosphere during a total eclipse of the sun by the moon. This fact has been conclusively established by the results of seven eclipse expeditions sent out by the Division of Terrestrial Magnetism, a section of the Coast and Geodetic Survey of the United States Government.

There are many unsolved mysteries connected with the subjects of magnetism, electricity and atomic structure. For example, a piece of iron may be magnetized, but what property of atomic or molecular structure results when the transformation has taken place? Extensive experiments carried on in the experimental laboratories of the Division of Terrestrial Magnetism at Washington show that certain bodies become magnetic as the result of rotation. Conversely, it has been shown that rotation may be caused by magnetism. The probable connection of these discoveries with the unsolved problems of cosmic evolution are of capital scientific importance.

It is well known that the displays of the aurora borealis or northern lights are particularly splendid in years when sun-spots are especially active. There is a certain periodicity about sun-spots, for every 11 years they are particularly abundant. Every one knows that the terrestrial globe is a spherical magnet, and that there are two magnetic poles. In some fashion, still mysterious, the spots on the sun set up magnetic fields, and the visible rays from these magnetic fields excite the earth until it glows about the poles. The fluctuations of these magnetic fields are registered by the beautiful and impressive phenomena known as the aurora borealis and the aurora australis —occurring, respectivley, at the North and South poles.

The phrase "magnetic storms" is subject to considerable misunderstanding. They are especially prevalent when a large group of sun-spots crosses the central meridian of the sun's disc. As Thomas says in Heaven and Earth:

In cellars deep underground, which are usually far removed from the disturbing influence of electric systems, the smallest movements of the needle are registered, and if any rather sudden variations occur, though they are merely harmless oscillations, we speak of a "magnetic storm." There is no lightning, no thunder; we human beings have no perception of the disturbance. But it is something very much more than a mere thunderstorm—on the sun a stupendous whirlwind is raging, compared to which one of our typhoons is child's play.

The late George Ellery Hale, distinguished American astronomer, discovered a law regarding solar cyclones which he formulated as follows:

The polarity of the sun-spots, in any period of eleven and a half years, is always the same, from minimum to minimum, but in every fresh period there is a complete transformation of the north magnetic fields into south magnetic fields, and vice versa.

In consequence, we should speak of a sun-spot period of twenty-three, instead of eleven and a half years.

∴ LISTEN, WORLD ∴

By Elsie Robinson

Last night I couldn't sleep. You know how it is with a strange bed. The pillow didn't fit. The angle was just wrong for my neck. So I kept fussing and fidgeting until the night and my disposition raveled away.

Then, just before sunrise, a thought hit me. After all, it wasn't the size of that pillow that had kept me awake, nor the angle of my neck. It was just a NOTION—a notion I had acquired about having a particular pillow for my particular neck.

Now, as a matter of fact, my neck isn't particular at all. It is just an ordinary neck and it would adapt itself to any ordinary pillow—IF I WOULD LET IT. But I won't let it! At some time in my career I made up my mind that I preferred a certain size of pillow. It was a mild, harmless little preference at first. It didn't interfere with my life in the least. But I took that harmless germ of a preference and I coddled and humored and indulged it until it grew into a definite, peevish PREJUDICE, which now actually tyrannizes over me and limits my freedom and comfort.

Could anything be more ridiculous? Here I am, a free, intelligent American citizen who should be able to sleep when and where I please, yet I am rendered wakeful and irritable by a notion which I have deliberately manufactured for no good reason whatever. As if there were not enough troubles in the world without hanging a Pillow Peeve on to oneself!

Sitting there, disgusted, with the dawn grinning in at me, it came to me that nine-tenths of our human troubles have the same idiotic source. Fate doesn't wish 'em on us—society doesn't inflict them upon us—we hang them on ourselves by indulging our own fool notions.

As babies we start without peeve or prejudice. We like ALL pillows, ALL people, and we're open to every new adventure. Life stretches before us in a shining, alluring trail. But this blissful condition does not last for long. Speedily the trail becomes beset with obstacles, warnings, detour signs. The DON'T of our parents block us repeatedly. Soon our own fears and facts hem us in. We get notions. Notions about people we like or don't like. Notions about food. Notions about pleasure. Notions about comfort. Presently whichever way we turn, we find our way blocked by some notion. Life loses its kick. We become bored, resentful. We feel we have been cheated and we blame Fate or Society for the dreary narrowing of our way.

But Fate and Society haven't cheated us. We have cheated ourselves. We had the freedom of the road—and then we proceeded to block that freedom with our own notions. Until that which was an open trail has become a blind alley, ending in an empasse of prejudice. And strangely enough, instead of being ashamed of these notions which are spoiling our lives, we are proud of them. We think they prove our superior sensitiveness. They don't. They merely prove our superior stupidity. It's as stupid to block your life with notions as it is to cut your throat—and amounts to the same thing in the end.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

It must be fun for a doctor to get an easy one. I mean if a guy has a toothache or a bruised toe or something simple like that, and don't imagine it's something else. A doctor has to do so much guessing that I reckon he'd almost treat a guy free if he was real sure just what was the matter with him right away. Well, there was a woman went to a doctor that specialized in goofyness.

She says: "Doc, my brother is goofy, I'm afraid. Anyhow, he's a little bit goofy. He can't sleep, and he talks to himself, and he wears polo shirts to the opera, and everything like that."

"Uhu. Has he been worrying?"

"Yeah, I reckon you'd call it worrying. He inherited a lot of dough last fall, and he can't make up his mind what to do with it."

"Send him right over to my office. Better not delay a bit, after the symptoms you told me about. And I can guarantee a cure. I can relieve him at once."

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Because of Her

Because of her a sad old man
Gained strength to face life's empty span
And found a measure of content
Down ways where once in grief he went!
Again he felt hope's wings' soft stir,
Because of her.

Because of her a girl grew strong
To turn her steps away from wrong,
And through much strife at last to learn
How brightly fires of honor burn.
What peace pure living can confer;
Because of her.

Because of her an unloved child
Grew glad and childlike, played and smiled.
All these there were, and many more
Each proud and free, a conqueror,
Because of her!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

SECTION II.
THE DISCOVERIES OF THE ABBE MENDEL

The pure line experiments tell us a good deal about what is not inherited and about the precautions needed in making experiments on inheritance; and they make it clear that what is inherited is something very definite, capable of remaining unchanged over a long series of generations.

The microscope has, moreover, made it practically certain that the hereditary constitution is contined in the chromosomes. But neither pure line experiments nor microscopical observation tell us anything important about the actual nature and composition of this inheritance. The clues to that problem come from another direction; they were put on record by the Abbe Mendel and in a quite different fashion.

H. G. Wells.

The history of his discovery and its fall into half-a-century's oblivion is a strange one—how, working through a sequence of years in his monastery garden at Brno, in Silesia, he hit upon vital facts as regards inheritance in peas and propounded equally vital theories to account for them; how in 1865, he published his results in the ordinary way, and was surprised at the scant attention paid them; how in attempting to apply his ideas to inheritance in other plants such as hawk-weeds, he met with difficulties which he could not overcome—difficulties which we now know were due to abnormal reproductive behavior in these plants and not to any defect in his thinking; how he died, a perplexed and disappointed man; how, in 1900, three botanists, searching through old scientific periodicals for facts bearing on their own researches, came across his papers independently and immediately realized their importance; how the enthusiastic discipleship of Professor Bateson led to the world-wide recognition of his work; how it was taken up and tested by a little army of investigators in every civilized country; and how his principles were speedily extended until we now recognize that almost all inheritance, plant, animal, and human, is Mendelian.

The intensive study of heredity which owes so much stimulation to the rediscovery of Mendel is usually called Genetics and its devotees are spoken of as Geneticists.

The expansion of knowledge in the field has been so rapid, and the opposition to the new ideas from many biologists who have been concerned with other branches of their science has been so great, that the extent of the change wrought by Mendel's work is still perhaps not fully appreciated by the world at large.

It constitutes the most important single step forward taken by biology during the last half century. It has the same fundamental importance for our understanding of heredity and evolution as had the cell theory for our understanding of the construction and reproduction of organisms; or the atomic theory for our understanding of matter and its chemical transformation. Today the theory of the atom is undergoing profound revision, but its share in the development of science has been of fundamental importance.

Today we can still criticize our definition of a "cell," and yet all biological work rests on that still developing conception.

Like the cell theory or the atomic theory, Mendelism has shown us that what we were used to think of as single indivisible wholes are in reality composed of discrete and definite units, and that the properties of the wholes —in this case, the hereditary constitutions of animals and plants— result directly from the particular combination of their component units.

According to the atomic theory, the atom-units of matter persist unchanged through all the strange material transformations which occur in nature or in the chemist's laboratory; when a candle burns, its matter is not destroyed, but the special arrangements of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen of which it consists are taken to pieces and, after combining with atoms of oxygen from the air, are liberated in the form of new atom-arrangements, which we call water-vapor, carbon dioxide, and so forth.

According to the Mendelian theory, the germ-plasm of animals or plants consists similarly of units. These units (apart from the "mutations" of which we have already made mention in our account of Johannsen's work) persist indefinitely without traceable change.

When, as we may actually do, we cross a black mouse and an albino, and obtain a progeny consisting of gray creatures exactly like wild mice, the units in the constitution which determine black hair and albinism have neither been lost, nor merged together (like drops of black and white paint) to form gray, but remain as distinct as the atoms in a molecule, and each is able to emerge unchanged and to produce its original effect in later generations.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 17.—The other late afternoon in the glowing splendor of a dying sun I visited the canine cemetery at Hartsdale, a short motor ride from New York. On a peaceful sweep of velvety lawn there my dog Junior was buried more than seven years ago.

Many believe sentimentality over the passing of a dog is mushy. Maybe it is, but it is an emotion as natural with some as breathing. At the grave, I recalled how Junior, mortally stricken by a careless motorist, crawled toward me, licked my hand and died. And there was a choke in my throat.

A command of mine sent Junior to his death and his lick of forgiveness to me is tinged with that spirit of forgiveness that sanctified the crucifixion. Perhaps dogs haven't souls, but I like to think that dogs we love and lose are romping in the Elysian fields and cocking ears now, and then for a familiar voice.

The bronze at the entrance of Hartsdale burial ground for four-footed friends is dedicated to "The War Dog, Man's Most Faithful Friend." The alert position, first aid kit strapped to back, the battered canteen and helmet at the feet tell the tale of unforgotten heroism.

There are more than 6,000 graves dotting the five and a half acre lot, which is planted with flowers and slit with cool gravel paths and slopes so impressively toward the river. Mostly dogs are buried there, but six horses, a lion cub, several parrots and monkeys are among its dead.

Plots range from $15 to $150, but there is one large plot upon which rests a $13,000 granite mausoleum to express the grief over "Sally" and "Toodles," two water spaniels. A still larger plot is owned by Mrs. McLaughlin, who was formerly Irene Castle, the dancer.

She has buried a monkey and six dogs there and seven tombstones have been placed over the graves. Still another grave is that of "Buster," a Gordon setter, and upon which is placed a rubber ball like the kind with which he used to play. The cemetery was established in 1896 by Dr. S. K. Johnson, a dog lover.

The finest and most interesting dog cemetery in the world is the Cimetrie des Chiens in Paris. In it are buried seven dog heroes of the late war and fresh flowers are placed on their graves daily.

The living musical revue has survived the assaults of the talkie revues. Movie magnates will make no further efforts to score over the in-the-flesh production. Their mistaken logic was that mathematical preponderance counted. That is if six principals and 12 chorus girls made a good revue, 600 principals and 1,200 chorus girls made one a hundred times better.

In the window of a hat store on Madison avenue is a silk topper with a hiding place inside for a thin half pint flask. The inventor is probably the wonder boy who thought up putting an electric light in a bass drum. That was a one!

As one of the Missouri puddle-jumpers I am continually awed by people who call napkins "serviettes." Anyone so nonchalant could chase a win' blown hat along the street without looking sappy.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

How do you treat the fellow who walks by your side every day.

You know what he thinks of you whether it is what you wish he might think.

This invisible somebody is the other side of you, the side the world does not know.

Aren't you a bit disgusted with yourself and ashamed when you realize that this other fellow knows that you are not what you pretend to be?

Practically every man has regrets and has had weak moments.

But now that you have reached the age when you should exercise good judgment and be guided accordingly, can you make a logical excuse for continuing to do the things that will cause you to blush in future years when you think of them?

Unless we do, we may not realize how far from the path we are straying.

There are so many little ways of committing infractions of the laws of society and moral ethics and injuring our moral standing that it is easy to get to an advance stage of lawlessness without comprehending the extent of the damage.
